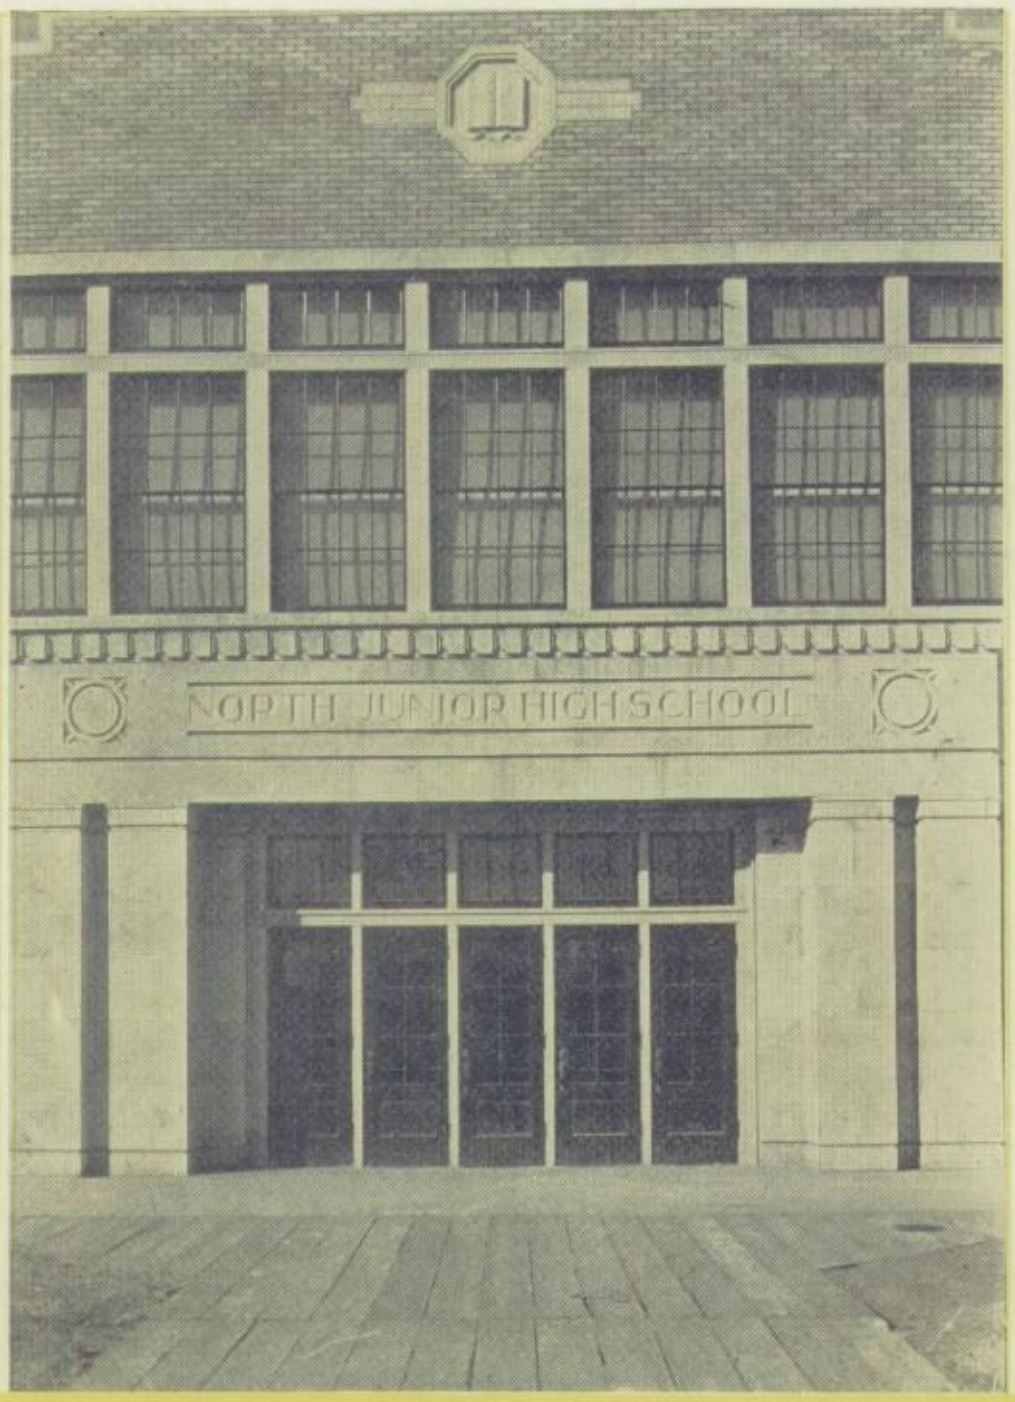
JOPLIN, MISSOURI



NORTH JUNIOR HIGH

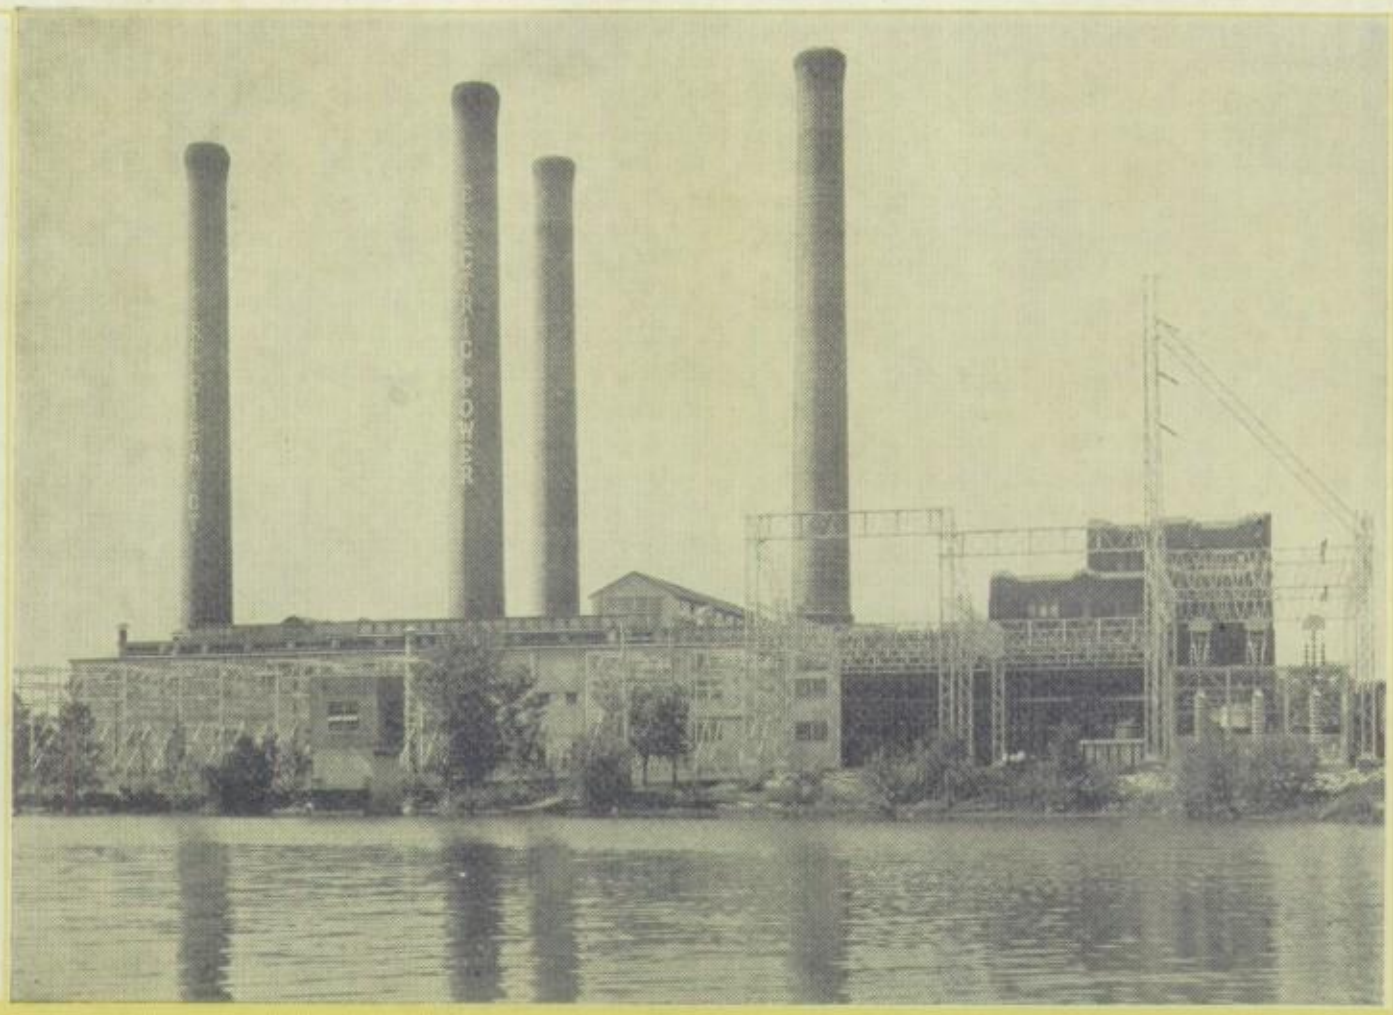
THEME

The North Junior High School represents the completion of the greatest building program recently undertaken in our city. The citizens of the future are the students of today. May our school, as does our city, be a faithful embodiment of THE SPIRIT OF ENTERPRISE.

HARRY E. BLAINE

DEDICATION

We dedicate this 1932 Joplimo to Mr. Harry E. Blaine, our principal, who has given unstintingly twenty years of service to Joplin High School; whose devotion to duty, and whose example as an upright, worthy citizen have been an inspiration to every student "To strive, to seek, to find."



EMPIRE DISTRICT ELECTRIC COMPANY

FOREWORD

The Empire District Electric Company represents the power behind practically all the enterprises of our city, and has helped make possible an industrial center of which we are justly proud. As the future citizens of Joplin, we present this 1932 Joplimo.

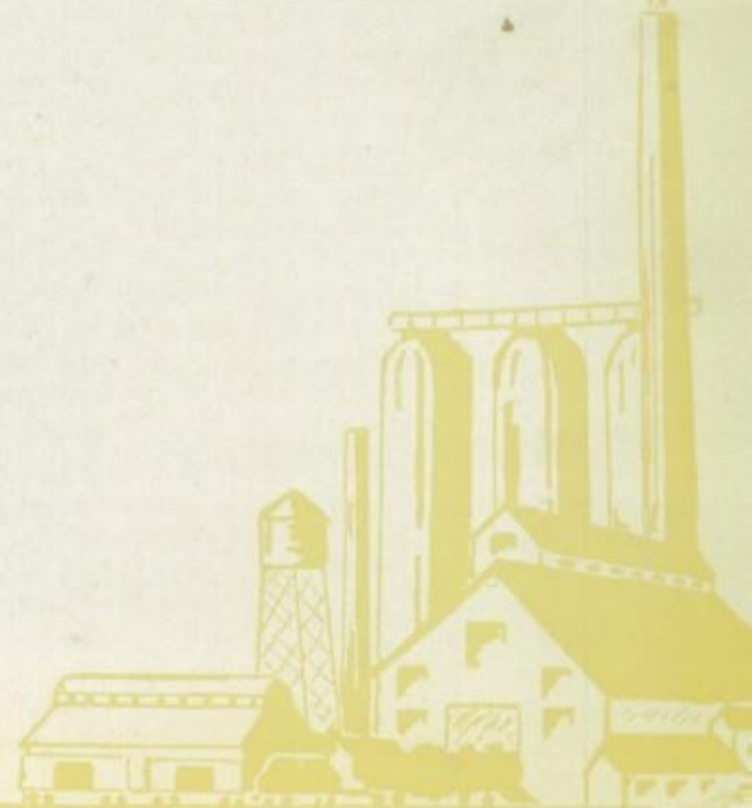
To these eminent citizens, the artisans in our educational system, who have given their time and energy so unreservedly to the development of our schools, we students of Joplin High School express our sincere gratitude.

Only through their untiring efforts have our schools become the most modern in this part of the state, and second to none in efficiency.

May these ambitious efforts inspire us to take every advantage of the splendid opportunities presented us by our city, under the direction of the Board of Education.



SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS

E. A. ELLIOTT, A. B., A. M.

Blessed is the young man or young woman to whom is given the privilege to live in a period of reconstruction. In the era through which we are passing there is a great need for well trained leaders. This community has done its best to prepare you for the duties imposed upon you by our democracy. The opportunity for service of a high order is ripe, the need is great. With what fidelity will you meet the responsibility? May every young person in our high school early learn that to serve is greater than to be served, and may this personal message to each one be an inspiration to work for humanity in all its relations.

As superintendent of schools, I congratulate the seniors, upon their graduation, and trust that this annual, in years to come, awakens in them memories of a happy past.

E. A. ELLIOTT,
Superintendent of Schools.

The citizens of Joplin can expect our schools to be only as enterprising as are the officials placed in charge of them. We are sure that the records of our executives justify our progress.

Mr. Elliott is a member of the Ninety-six Club, made up of two superintendents from each state in the union. He is, as are most of Joplin's teachers, a member of the National Education Association. He is chairman of the school administration and social studies departments of the Missouri State Teachers Association. Mr. Elliott attended the national superintendents meeting at Washington, D. C., and the state administrative meeting at Columbia.

PRINCIPAL OF HIGH SCHOOL

We have gradually awakened to the fact that true culture cannot be separated from one's pursuit. The task of the school is not complete until each of its pupils is successfully and happily at work in some life vocation. In view of this, every effort has been made to make training definitely vocational. Many new courses of study have been added to make education practical. The future must see the school more and more adjusting its training to the needs of the local community, thereby enriching and beautifying the life of all the people. We have sought to make school life not only a preparation for richer living, but a part of real life in which the pupil will live normally, acquiring a real life experience in citizenship. Thus we have sought to round out the individual pupil into complete manhood and womanhood.

H. E. BLAINE,
Principal of Joplin H. S.

H. E. BLAINE, A. B., A. M.

During the past year Mr. Blaine attended the meeting in Chicago of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. He serves on the commission on unit courses and curricula for a three-year term. He also attended the Missouri Teachers Association meeting in St. Louis. In conjunction with the National Education Association Mr. Blaine is a member of the department of secondary school principals.

Locally, Mr. Blaine, as well as Mr. Elliott, is a member of the Rotary Club, and is very active in civic, fraternal, and church affairs.

Mr. Blaine's Secretary, Miss Merl Martin.

STUDENT COUNCIL » FIRST SEMESTER

Third Row—Fry, Barnett, M. Miller, Sharp, Thompson, Herb, McGehee, Brown, Krieckhaus, Temple, Carter, E. Miller. Second Row—Fowks, Miss Elliot, Graves, Morris, Knighton, Krill, Havens, Lenger, Roehling, Miss Griffith, Manning. First Row—Carmel, Dempsey, Reporter; Baker, Parliam.; Warden, Secy.; Hurlbut, Pres. pro-tem; Bell, Financial Secy.; McDonald, Pres.; Webb, Conrath, Melton, Linn.

The Student Council of Joplin High School was organized in the fall term of 1928. It is made up of thirty-four members, each one being the representative of his home room. Both the president and the secretary of this organization are elected by the student body at the beginning of each semester. The nominations for these two offices are made by the faculty and the nominees must have a high scholastic standing. The other officers are elected by the Council. The president must be a member of the senior class. Regular meetings are held every Monday morning.

The Council is an advisory body for the students and helps the school by promoting good citizenship, making regulations for classes, students and organizations. Before the regulations passed by the society become official, they must be approved by the principal. Much of the success of the Student Council is due to the splendid leadership and co-operation of the two sponsors, Miss Ione Elliot and Miss Phebe Griffith.

STUDENT COUNCIL » SECOND SEMESTER

Third Row—Barnett, M. Miller, Fowks, Diehl, Brown, McGehee, C. Miller, Askins, Manning, Financial Secy.; Carter, Fry, Reporter. Second Row—Miss Elliot, Kitto, Gadberry, Martin, H. Miller, Ballard, Howard, Cartwright, Harrison, Morris, Fisher, Miss Griffith. First Row—White, Dempsey, Trimble, Bushner, Hurlbut, Pres. pro-tem; Rodarme, Serg.-at-arms; McDonald, Pres.; Skelton, Webb, Warden, Secy.; Melton, Parliam.

Much valuable work was accomplished by the Student Council in 1931-32. It assisted materially in the sale of activity tickets at the beginning of the year, selling a large per cent of the number sold in the entire school. The sale of used books at mid-year was handled, for the first time this year by the Council. They, thereby aided the librarian very much and added quite a substantial sum to the Student Council treasury.

All the Christmas decorations at the high school were planned, provided, and arranged by this group. It also beautified the campus by planting and replacing shrubs around the building. The Council sponsored the organization known as the "Pep Club" which functioned at all pep assemblies and all football and basketball games. Members of the Council aided in cleaning up the school and setting an excellent example of good school-citizenship for the rest of the students. The Lost and Found Bureau was managed by the Council.

ENGLISH AND SPEECH

Barlow Colvin Robinson Moran Livingston Barnett Sallee

This year thirty-eight classes have been required to accommodate the 1,250 English students. In addition to the regular English classes taught by each teacher, Miss Grace Colvin, A. B., and Miss Kathryn Moran, B. S., have the commercial English classes. Miss Moran is debate coach, and Miss Wynett Barnett, B. S., is dramatic coach, and has the speech classes. Mr. Hobart Sallee, M. A., teaches the oratory classes.

In her leisure time Miss Leah Robinson, B. S., likes to sketch and do water color work, while Miss Edna Barlow, B. S., hunts apartments. Miss Colvin likes to make salads and biscuits, and Miss Barnett likes to sew. Miss Moran works in whatever group she is, while Mr. Lee S. Livingston, B. S., and Mr. Sallee like outdoor sports.

A Speech Class.

LANGUAGES

MacCartney Buckeridge Wolfe Buck

Our language department offers much freedom of choice to the students. Two years of Spanish, two years of French, and three years of Latin are offered.

Miss Ethel MacCartney, A. B., and Miss Laura K. Wolfe, A. B., have 175 students in their Spanish classes. Miss MacCartney, who is fond of reading Spanish books, and of traveling, has studied in Mexico and in Spain. Miss Wolfe is especially interested in sports and literature.

Miss Bess Buckeridge, A. B., A. M., has 130 pupils in her Latin classes. She uses the socialized study plan extensively in her work. She is much interested in the University Women's Club, and in travel.

In the French classes of Miss Lucile Buck, A. B., B. S., are 148 students. In the advanced classes the pupils correspond with native students of France, thus making their knowledge of French practical. Miss Buck has many hobbies, among them being horseback riding and "Whippeting."

A Latin Study Class.

HISTORY AND SOCIAL SCIENCE

Price Gardner Vawter Haswell

Nearly 700 students are enrolled in the history and social science classes this year. In this department one may choose the general history course, consisting of one year each of ancient and modern history; or he may choose one year of world history, and one of American history, the course provided for commercial, teacher training, and trade school students.

Miss Emma Price, A. B., has the ancient and modern history classes. Miss Clara Gardner, B. S., teaches the world history classes, while Miss Susan E. Haswell, A. B., has world and American history classes. Mr. James Vawter, A. B., has the sociology and economics classes for seniors.

Miss Price and Miss Haswell are active members of the University Women's Club. Miss Price is fond of music, reading, and doing things with her hands, especially cooking. Miss Haswell is fond of reading, and spends some time with her music. Miss Gardner has various outside interests, but is especially interested in the Athenaeum Literary Society, of which she is sponsor. Mr. Vawter is fond of motoring, and of all sorts of outdoor sports.

A Map Study Class.

MATHEMATICS

Griffith Williamson Elliott

About 350 students are enrolled in the classes of the mathematics department this year. Special attention has been given to making the classes desired for certain courses available. In addition to the general course of two semesters of plane geometry, one each of solid geometry and trigonometry, and one of advanced algebra, there are four semesters of shop mathematics for the trade school students, and one semester of advanced arithmetic for teacher training students.

Miss Phebe Griffith, B. S., and Miss Ione Elliott, Ph. B., are geometry, algebra, and trigonometry teachers. Both are sponsors of the Student Council, and Miss Elliott is also a sponsor of the Girl Reserves. Both are very fond of flowers, and they, with Miss Williamson, like to hunt for antiques. Miss Williamson, in addition to her geometry classes, is attendance secretary for the girls of the school, and still finds a little time to work on her quilts.

A Geometry Demonstration.

SCIENCE

Buskett Drummond

The science courses are always popular with the students, as is shown by the fact that over one-third of the entire student body is enrolled in classes in that department. One year's work is offered in each of the following sciences: biology, agriculture, chemistry, physics, and geology; while one semester of commercial geography is given.

Miss E. Catherine Drummond, B. S., M. A., has six classes of enthusiastic sophomores in her biology work. She is a sponsor of the Girl Reserves, and is much interested in nature study.

Mr. Evans W. Buskett, B. S., M. E., chemistry and geology teacher, is the faculty advisor of the Spyglass, school newspaper, and his hobby is the study of minerals.

Mr. A. L. Pry, B. S., A. B., came to Joplin High this year to succeed Mr. L. T. Evans in the agriculture and physics classes. While Mr. Pry has many special interests, we are inclined to believe that his chief interest is his charming baby daughter.

A Chemistry Laboratory Class.

HOME ECONOMICS

Reed Cooper

The enrollment in the home economics department grows steadily from year to year, as the girls realize that cooking and sewing have come to be recognized as necessary arts. Two years of both cooking and sewing are offered.

The sewing classes with an enrollment of 152 girls are supervised by Miss Ethel Reed, B. S. The girls gain a practical knowledge of all types of fabrics, and make practically every type of clothing for themselves. Miss Reed also has charge of the Rotary girls, and outside of school hours finds time to do club work. She also enjoys driving, and finding new stations on the radio.

There are 87 girls in the cooking classes directed by Mrs. Elizabeth Jaccard Cooper, B. S. The girls, under Mrs. Cooper's direction, have helped to serve many dinners and banquets. The cafeteria, also under her supervision, is managed so efficiently that a very large proportion of our 1,200 enrollment is served daily in the three thirty-minute lunch periods. Outside of school hours Mrs. Cooper finds time to care for her flower garden, from which many flowers are gathered to brighten the cafeteria.

A Laboratory Cooking Class.

COMMERCE

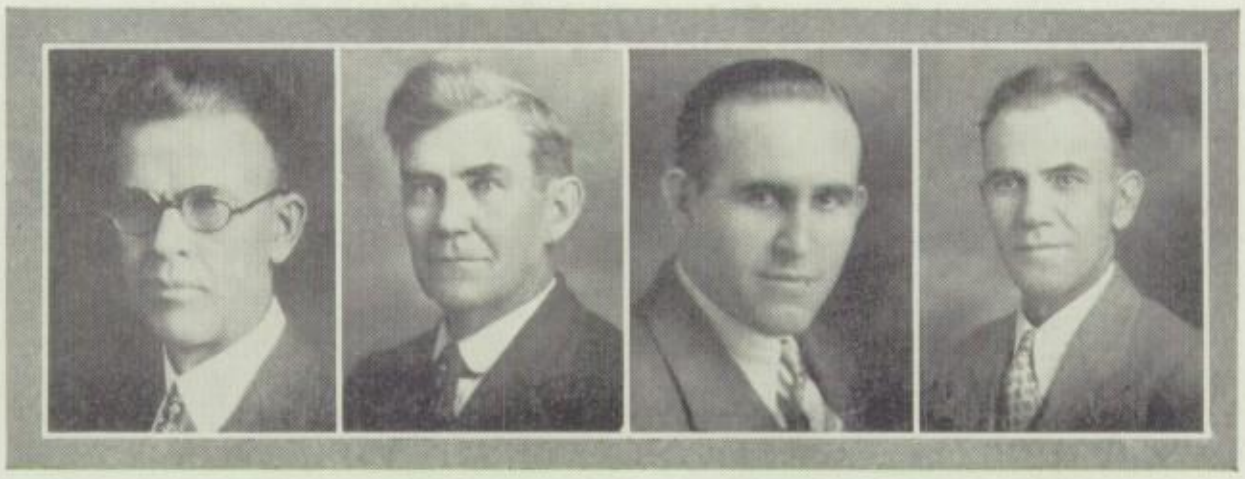
Chamberlain Petrie Beuhlman Jackson Martin

The commercial department shows a noticeable decrease in enrollment this year, having a total of 873 students, as compared with 958 for the corresponding period last year. This situation is probably due to the fact that the market for commercial talent is overcrowded. The department offers two years of both typing and shorthand, three semesters of bookkeeping, and one semester of commercial law. There are also classes in advertising and salesmanship for seniors, and in retail selling for senior girls. The advanced students have charge of activity ticket accounts, and get other practical experience in their classes.

Miss Gladys Beuhlman, B. S., and Miss Marian Martin, B. S., are typing and shorthand teachers; while Miss Beulah C. Jackson, B. S., has typing and office practice classes. Mrs. Fleta Childs Petrie, B. Pe., B. S., has bookkeeping, shorthand and typing classes; while Mr. Harry C. Chamberlain, B. S., E. M., has bookkeeping, retail selling, and commercial law classes. Miss Beuhlman's favorite hobbies are music and bridge. Miss Martin spends much of her spare time with the Business and Professional Women's Club, while Miss Jackson is very fond of picture shows, and her favorite sport is golf. Mrs. Petrie enjoys swimming, dancing and golf, while Mr. Chamberlain is an Ozark enthusiast, whose hobby is fishing.

A Commercial Law Class.

VOCATIONAL ARTS



Henley Duan Haines Farmer

The industrial arts department is one of the most important of all departments in the high school. This year there is an enrollment of 362 students who intend to follow one of these trades for their life work. Besides the regular trade courses, auto mechanics and carpentry, there are the manual training and mechanical drawing courses, which may be taken in connection with either the trade courses or the general course. The manual training classes do much repair work as part of their training, the auto mechanics classes do regular repair work on cars, while the carpentry classes go on field trips as tours of inspection for helpful information.

Mr. Victor A. Haines, B. S., is the teacher of mechanical drawing and shop mathematics. He is much interested in reading memoirs and biographies. Mr. J. Arthur Henley teaches manual training. Besides being interested in boys and girls, he is very fond of fencing and archery, and sponsors the Fencing Club.

Mr. A. W. Duan teaches carpentry, and his hobby is picture shows. He is an authority on who's who in Hollywood. Mr. Farmer is the teacher of auto mechanics, and his outside interests are baseball and football.

A Carpentry Class.

MUSIC

Coulter

The music department is one of the most popular in the high school. Students enrolled in this department number 215, with an additional number of 105 in the R. O. T. C. band. The girls' and the boys' glee clubs meet separately twice a week, and together once as the mixed chorus. Any other students in the school interested in chorus singing may belong to the mixed chorus.

The musical organizations have done much toward promoting school spirit in Joplin High School. Besides helping the dramatics and other departments to present programs during the entire year, there have been several splendid concerts, and the spring contest, in which many students participated.

The various organizations and the winning soloists in the spring contest attended the annual Inter-state Musical Contest held in Pittsburg, Kansas, late in April, and brought home many honors for themselves and their school.

Mr. T. Frank Coulter, A. B., musical director, likes to read, to swim, and to play volley ball with his children.

A Trumpet Ensemble.

TEACHER TRAINING

Oldham

The senior teacher training students number 14, and the junior class has 27 enrolled. The especial requirements for graduation from this course are psychology, methods, school administration, agriculture and one other science, and social subjects. Intensive reviews in arithmetic, geography, language and grammar also form a part of the training.

Frequent visits are made to the elementary schools for observation and instruction. Each student spends at least one week in the rural schools of the county teaching and observing. A number of splendid young teachers who received their preliminary training in Joplin High School are in the schools of Jasper and neighboring counties.

As the state appropriation for the teacher training classes was not made this year, it will be necessary to discontinue the course. The junior students will choose other subjects to supplement their course so that they may complete the general course.

Mr. C. W. Oldham, B. S., A. B., teacher training instructor, is interested in chicken raising and gardening, and likes all kinds of sports.

An Observation Class.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Humphrey Krieckhaus

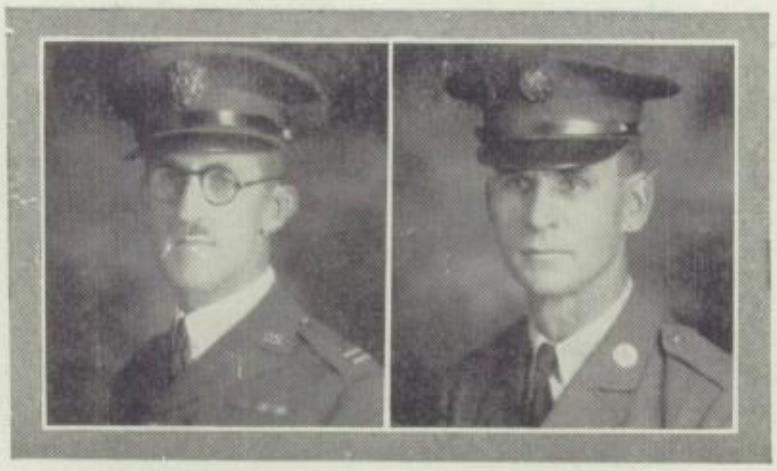
Physical training not only helps to preserve the health, but also furnishes recreation for the students, and helps them develop sportsmanship. The girls' gymnasium classes have approximately 400 students enrolled. The boys' classes have about 100 enrolled, as only those boys not in the military unit are in these classes.

The girls have had many volley ball and baseball tournaments this year. The best team from each class is chosen to play in the tournament. There are also basketball, baseball, and tennis teams that play other schools. In the class periods the girls are taught gymnastics, dancing, and games. Miss Helen Krieckhaus, B. S., girls' coach, has as her hobbies golf and travel.

The boys' basketball team won second place in the state tournament in Columbia. The boys have played many basketball games in their classes this year. Sergeant Collier has assisted in the boys' gymnasium classes this year. Mr. E. O. Humphrey, A. B., boys' coach, likes outdoor sports, especially baseball, fishing, and quail hunting.

A Gymnasium Class.

MILITARY SCIENCE



Allison Collier

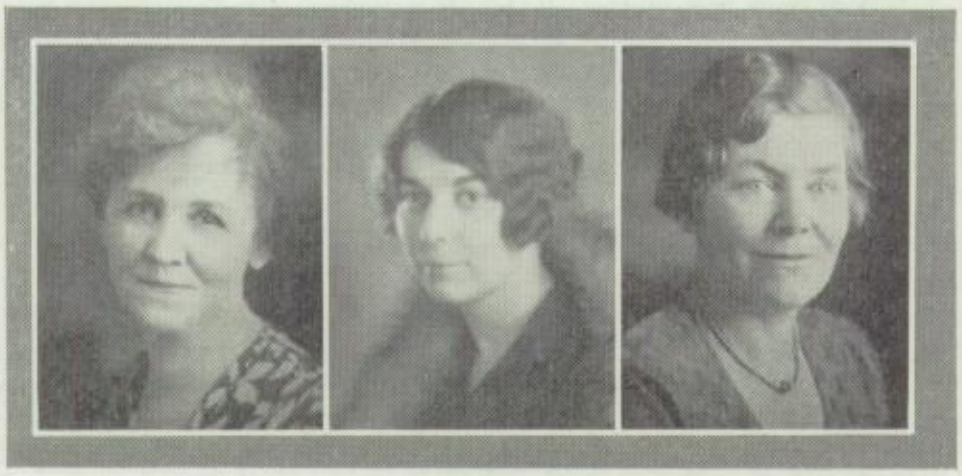
The military science classes are in charge of Captain James E. Allison and Sergeant D. C. Collier, of the United States Army. The battalion is divided into band, staff, and four companies. There are 312 cadets and 29 officers enrolled in the battalion. The work consists of eleven science and ten drill periods each week, and a parade Wednesday. Most of the training of the under-classmen is done by the commissioned and non-commissioned officers.

The cadet band has assisted at practically every sort of civic and school affair held, while the entire unit has participated in numerous parades during the year. Firing squads have been furnished for military funerals. The distinction of "Honor Unit" has been conferred on our battalion since 1925.

Captain Allison is very much interested in Boy Scout work, and is fond of golf. Sergeant Collier has many hobbies, among which are picking cherries, hunting, and golf. Captain Allison has been with our R. O. T. C. for two years, while Sergeant Collier has been with us since 1919.

A Military Science Class.

STUDY HALLS AND LIBRARY



Clark Decker Chestnut

Since the enrollment of our school has passed the 1,200 mark, and since our adoption of the hour-plan of recitation with supervised study during the latter part of the hour, our two study halls have become inadequate for the size of the study classes. During the entire past year it has been necessary to provide an extra study hall almost every period of the day to accommodate the number of pupils.

Mrs. Edna Clark, in charge of the boys' study hall, has many outside interests, but her group of Herculean boys, and her own son, in particular, are her chief hobbies. Mrs. Edna Chestnut, supervisor of the girls' study hall, likes girls, and sponsors a club of senior girls.

Miss Laura Decker, B. S., A. B., has been in charge of the library the past year. She helped the Student Council to handle the sale of second-hand books, and succeeded in having the sale conducted with less friction than formerly. Miss Decker likes music and enjoys swimming.

A TRIBUTE

To all teachers in general, and to our own faculty in particular.

Every land in every clime
  Has heroes great in every time,
And in our nation, wide and free,
  The noblest we so seldom see.
Yes, we are blind! They're greater far
  Than many lauded mortals are;
They dwell among us, seek not fame,
  Live to fulfill a lofty aim.

Instructing us in history,
  In science, and geometry
In truth is but a portion small
  Of their great work—for first of all
They seek to guide the nation's youth
  Toward love of country, honor, truth—
That those who now are young and gay
  The nation's strength shall be, one day.

Pleasant, helpful, friendly, kind,
  They seek to train the heart and mind
Of every boy and girl. They see
  In some, signs of great ability,
And then they wisely lead and guide
  Such children in them to confide
That they may learn their dreams, then help
  Each one to find his greatest self.

With steady hand and patience strong
  They lead the backward one along,
Make all things clear that even he
  Can see the lesson vividly;
And try, at least, to make him know
  With truth and honor he must go
Through all his life. They teach him, too,
  Some useful work that he can do.

Thus, their lives they gladly give
  That all things great and good may live
Forever. Oh, sing their praise.
  The torch of learning do they raise
More high! They fan to flames the spark
  Of genius. Each mind still dark
Patiently they try to clear—
  Yet live unsung among us here.

The members of the sophomore class have energetically begun their careers by becoming apprentices in the various positions the school offers them.

A large number have secured positions on the Spyglass staff, while others have enrolled in the orchestra and band. There are three girls and several boys representing their class in the Girls' and the Boys' Drum Corps.

A number of sophomores participated in the intramural debate tournament. John McGehee, the vice-president of the class, is on the tournament debate team.

Genevieve Duran represented Joplin High School in the violin contest at Pittsburg, and Marjorie Prutsman placed second in piano in the preliminary contest.

The scholarship is such that the class will be well prepared to take its place in school affairs in the two years yet to come.

"ALL'S WELL----"

SCENE I.

(Enter Carolyn, deeply distressed because her father, a Miller, is unable to pay the mortgage, which is overdue.)

Carolyn: "O, father, how can you let Mullins Robb us of our beautiful White cottage? Oh, why can't you sell the Mills?"

Father: "My child, the Sayles Price is too high, I suppose, but I can't sacrifice my Mills for any less."

Carolyn: "Oh, I just know Burt could have Dunn something."

(Enter the villain.)

Mullins: "Ah, me proud beauty, your Medlin father will have to pay the mortgage now, or I will have the Parsons to marry us at once, as agreed. Here, put away McKain."

Carolyn (goes over to the looking-Glass, in which she sees the Gardner, trying to attract her attention): "I've such a Payne in my Temple. I think I'll go to the Wells to get a drink."

Mullins: "Well, don't try to escape," (pulling his mustache and muttering to himself.) "I've been waiting Weeks for this moment."

SCENE II.

(Carolyn Treadway into the Woods where she met her lover under the old Chestnut tree.)

Carolyn: "O, Burt, this is Moore than I can stand. I wish I were in London."

Burt: "Magill, I'll save you somehow. Let's Hyde until Knight-fall and then escape. Don't you just love to hear the Robbins Carroll in the Woods?"

(The Rhodes are very Ruff, and soon our friends are very tired.)

Carolyn: "I'm so tired, I think I shall lie down and take a Knapp."

Burt: "Noe, we had better go farther West before we stop."

(They start on their way again, and after a time come to a stream.)

Burt: "We'll have to Steele this canoe. I'll do the Manning of the oars."

Carolyn (thinking of her father and Mullins): "When they're Dunn Eaton, they'll be sure to look for us. Let me Roe awhile?"

Burt: "No, let's Parker canoe and go on foot awhile."

Carolyn: "Every time I think of that Leach it makes me Maddy."

Burt: "Gee, I'm hungry. You know, sometimes hermits live on Herbs."

Carolyn: "Herbs may be all right, but you know bread is the Grandstaff of life." (They hear voices in the distance.)

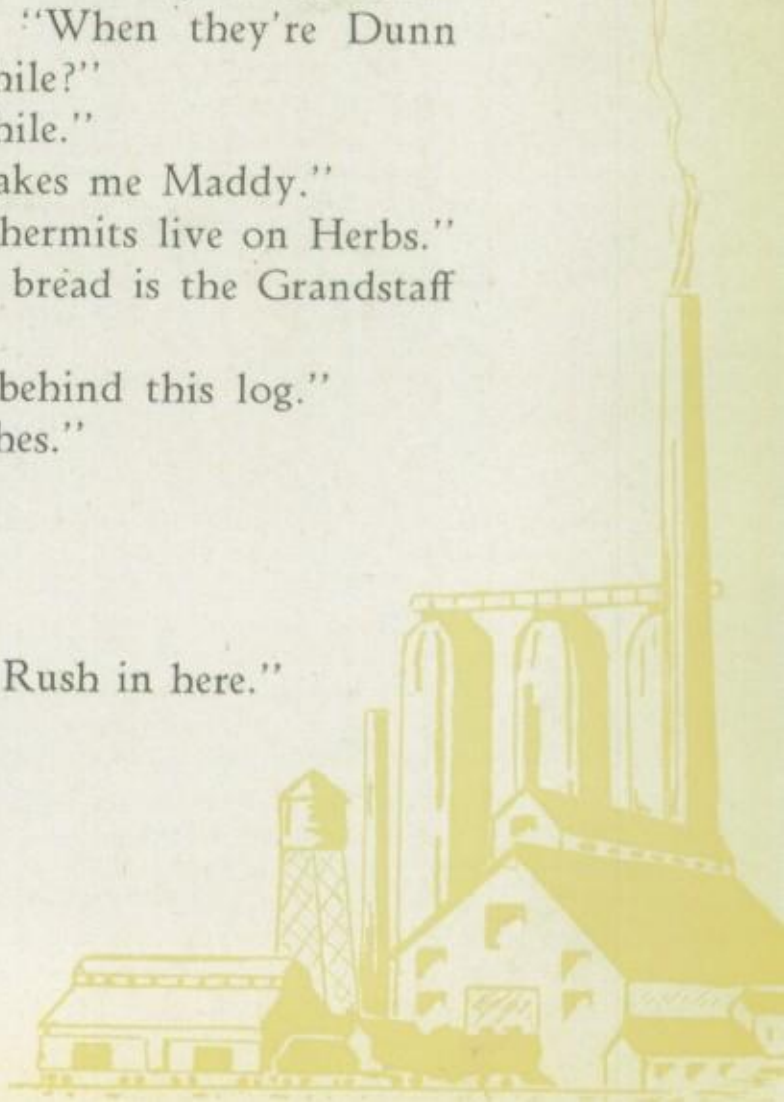
Burt: "Great Scott! Someone's coming. Leslie behind this log."

Carolyn: "No, I think I'll Crouch behind these bushes."

SCENE III.

(Enter father and villain.)

Father: "Dad Burnett, I'd have sworn I saw them Rush in here."



Mullins: "When I find them, I'll make her marry me if I have to Draeger to the Church."

Father: "We surely lost them when they turned down that last Lane."

Mullins: "Crane your neck and see if you can't find them."

(With no warning whatever Burt jumps from behind the log, and attacks Mullins. Duren the struggle, Archer, an English Hunter, who was Heaton some Lamb chops over a Camp-fire, heard the commotion and came up.)

Archer: "What's this? A fight?"

Carolyn: "Oh, Chesser. Won't you help us?"

Archer (feeling very sorry for the lovers, separates the two men, who are still fighting, and says to Mullins): "If I had my Gunn here I'd probably shoot you. As it is, (administering a Sharp blow on the chin) take that!"

Burt (to the Hunter, who is brushing the Clay from his clothes): "Wood you Linder fellow the money to get married on?"

Archer: "Sure, 'olman."

Father (undergoing a change of Hart): "I realize I was unjust, but I can't Calbeck what I said. Can you forgive me?"

Carolyn (who in her distress had begun to Ball): "I hear the Church Bell ringing."

Burt: "No, it's only the Bell on the Baker's wagon."

Finley the True-blue Burt and the Coy Carolyn were married, and we trust they lived happily ever afterward.

A TINY, TINY FAIRY

One time I saw a fairy.
She was very light and airy,
Was that tiny, tiny fairy.

She was dressed in lily white,
Like a beautiful moonlight night
Was that tiny, tiny fairy.

I was afraid to move,
Because I thought that it might prove
She wasn't really a tiny, tiny fairy.

I sat there very, very still
'Til I heard the whip-por-will,
Watching that tiny, tiny fairy.

And I knew I'd have to move
Even if it was to prove
She was an imaginary fairy.

And I quietly moved,
Alas! Alas! It proved
She was an imaginary tiny, tiny fairy.

The juniors, the journeymen of our school, feel that they have secured quite a prominent place in school honors this year. George Van Hoorebeke was appointed major of the Boys' Drum and Bugle Corp.

Several members of the class represented Joplin High School in the Pittsburg contest. Among them were: Reba Mae Showalter, piano soloist; James Growden, bass soloist; Mary Elizabeth Bell, contralto soloist; and John Welsh, trombone soloist.

Many of the teams which competed in the intramural debate tournament were composed of members of the junior class. Junior Wells is a member of the state debate team, and Glennis Lee Doty, Donna Maxine Williams, and Maxine De Vaney are on the tournament debate team.

The class play "Polly With a Past," was an overwhelming success; and the very high percentage of the class on the honor roll is conclusive evidence of its high standing in scholarship.

EVOLUTION

(With apologies)

Half a year, a whole year, a year and a half onward.
The sophies are marching, with no time to squander.
Juniors to left of them, seniors to right of them,
Jokes played all over them, five or six hundred,
Theirs not to reason why, theirs but to do or die,
Only to begin again each time they have blundered.

Green when they came to us,
Budding and tender,
Hearts brimming full of hope,
Sophies surrendered.
For now they are juniors
With the mid-students' scope,
A product of knowledge, ambition, and hope.

A year more of schooling,
And then they are done,
With a life's work before them
And the end of their fun.
But look! Why the worry and care on their brow?
It's the dignity of the senior they demonstrate now.

We, the graduating class of 1932, have passed through our apprenticeships and become journeymen. Now as master craftsmen, we are prepared to enter our individual fields and succeed in them because of the training which we have received.

Our play, "Peg O' My Heart," was a decided success. It was selected by Mr. Sallee, Miss Price, Jack Rodarme, Dorothy Messick, Doris Linn, and Mary Elizabeth Farnham.

The rings and pins of which we are so proud were chosen by Zena Baker, Clarence Havens, and Merlyn Perkins.

The members of the announcement committee were Sara Nelle Pickett, Helen Crouch, Marjorie Havens, and Clarence Skelton.

Our scholarship has been high and we are justly proud of our record. The ten seniors ranking highest in the class are: Leroy Patterson, Imogene Ruhl, Annabelle Jenkins, Dorothy McCaskill, Ruth Melton, Helen Lee Crawford, Mary Elizabeth Farnham, Zena Baker, Josephine Miller, Mary Ann Wentroth.

PUBLICATION CONTESTS

JOPLIMO

This page is set aside by the 1932 staff in recognition of the noteworthy work done by the 1931 staffs of both the Joplimo and the Spyglass.

The 1931 Joplimo received First Class Honor Rating in the National Year Book Contest sponsored by the National Scholastic Press Association. In the annual state contest held by the Missouri Interscholastic Press Association, the '31 book won first place for schools with an enrollment of more than 1,000 students. Very favorable criticism was given by both associations to the theme, the plan of the book, and the art work of the Joplin year book.

The 1932 staff, under the able leadership of Miss Barlow, Miss Buck, and Mr. Livingston, has worked faithfully to produce a book as outstanding as the 1931 annual. In celebration of the completion of their labors, they held a banquet on May 13, 1932, at which members of the staff received and examined first copies from the printers.

SPYGLASS

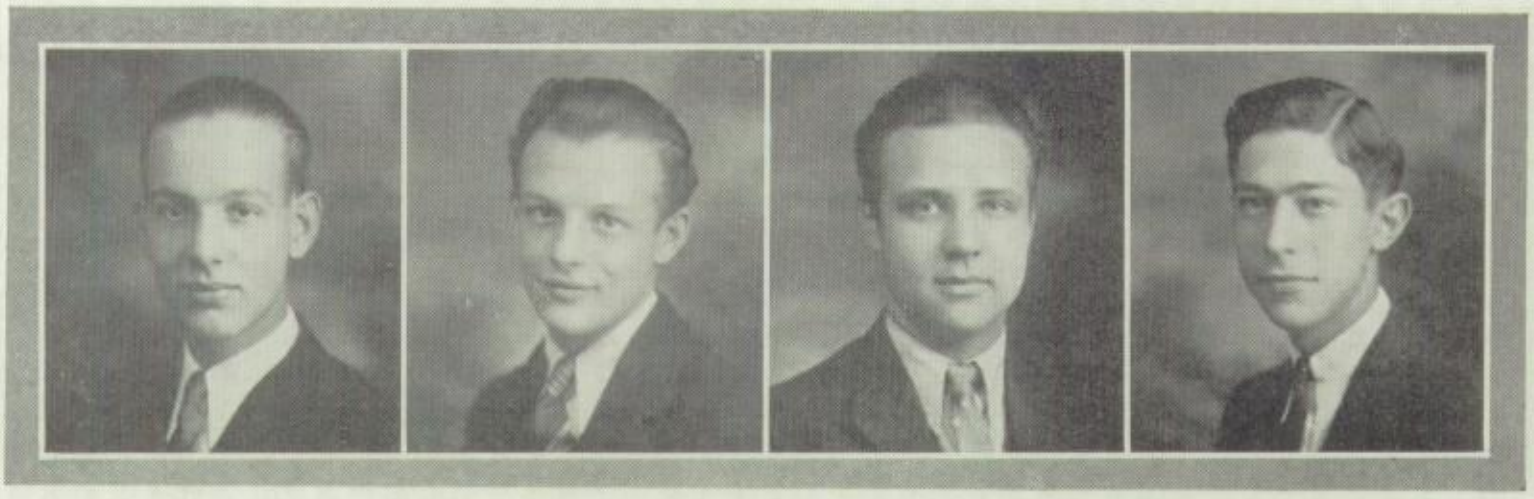
In the contest for high school newspapers sponsored by the Missouri Interscholastic Press Association, the 1931 Spyglass won honorable mention for the third successive year. The 1932 Spyglass is entered in the contest held by the National Scholastic Press Association, where the staff hopes to make a very creditable showing.

The sponsors of the Spyglass are Mr. Buskett and Miss Robinson. With the capable help of these two advisers, the '32 Spyglass did splendid work, both journalistically and financially. A banquet was held on March 22, to mark the end of a successful year.

ISSUES

THE JOPLIMO 1932

THE STATE TEAM



Helm Wells Jewett Klein

The number of students who, the first week in October, tried out for the State Debate Team was larger than it had been in any previous year. The outstanding entries, however, proved to be Junior Wells, Armand Helm, Orval Jewett, and Robert Klein. It is they who have this year represented Joplin in the Missouri High School Debating League, the state question being: "Resolved, that the several states should enact legislation providing for compulsory unemployment insurance."

The group to which Joplin was assigned included Carterville, Mindenmines, and Golden City. Members of this group held a one-day tournament in Joplin, January 8, at which time Joplin was determined winner.

The local debaters again won honor for themselves and for the school when they, on February 5, defeated Diamond, the winner of a neighboring group. But on March 8, they lost to Springfield in the semi-final debate of the Southwest District.

Debating in the State League, however, was only a little of what the boys did to advertise their school. Robert Klein and Orval Jewett, upholding the affirmative, and Junior Wells and Armand Helm, upholding the negative side of the question, participated in tournaments held in Pittsburg, Coffeyville, Marshall, and at Westminster in Fulton. Their ranking in every case was exceedingly good.

In Coffeyville, where ninety teams participated, they competed in the semi-final round, losing to the team that won in the tournament; in Pittsburg they reached the semi-final; in Marshall, the ranking of one member, Junior Wells, was six-tenths per cent less than was that of the boy who won the scholarship; in Westminster, at Fulton, they again competed in the semi-final round.

There are two chief advantages in these forensic contests: (1) the boys improve from their own effort and from their fine social contact; and (2) the school improves its already good reputation by sending efficient representatives to compete in tournaments away from home.

THE TOURNAMENT TEAM

Doty McGehee DeVaney Williams

The State League Team has had this year a co-working group, known as a tournament team. This team is composed of Glennis Lee Doty, John McGehee, Donna M. Williams, and Maxine DeVaney, all of whom have participated in three tournaments—those held at Pittsburg, Coffeyville, and Bolivar.

In the Pittsburg tournament "scouting" was permitted and encouraged, in order that debaters might give and get all the good possible from the occasion. There, also, did the debaters attend a debate between a team from Constantinople, Turkey, and a team representing Kansas State Teachers College.

In the Coffeyville tournament, of the two debates broadcast, Glennis Lee Doty and John McGehee, not only took part in one of them, but also were victorious and had the pleasure of hearing the announcement in favor of Joplin made over the radio.

In Bolivar, the team reached the semi-finals, but lost to the Miami team, one of whom was last year the national debate champion.

The deep study of a great problem, the fine mental re-action, and the coming in contact with some of the best students of other schools have made the members of this Joplin team more efficient in presiding in meetings, in having poise while expressing their opinions, and in helping efficiently in activities where they are needed.

A tournament is, in fact, the greatest help possible to enthusiastic debaters.

This team has taken part this year in twenty rounds of debate, using each time the state question.

The foundation of debating is clear thinking. One who knows what he wants to say, can say it. Debaters have learned the truth of Boileau's expression:

"Clear conception leads naturally to clear and correct expression."

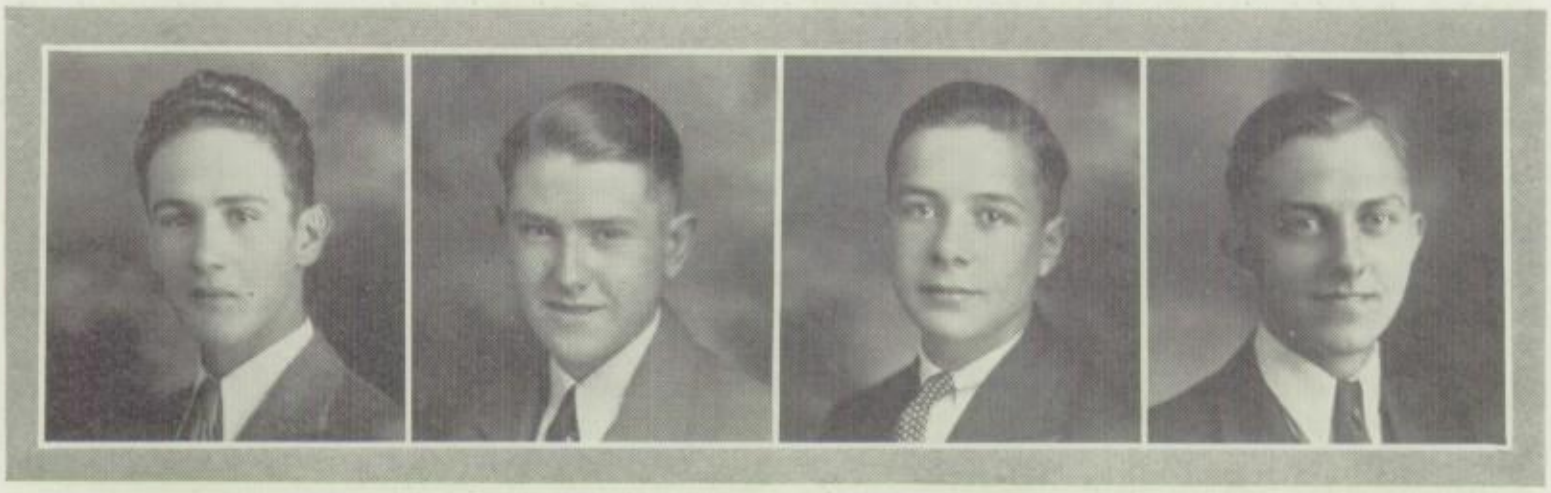
GROUP IN SPRING TOURNAMENTS

The Spring Debate Tournament of this year has excelled in numbers and in enthusiasm the tournament of any former year. Parents, teachers, and students have been brought into closer contact with one another than would have been possible without the debating.

The names of the eighty-four students who actually debated in all of the five rounds before elimination are as follows:

Loyal Buckingham, Paul Stevens, Milton Ebersole, Fred Childress, Loren Watson, Jack Allman, Howard Thorpe, Robert Rue, Gene Crane, and Jim Atteberry (Athenaeums); Mary Brewer, Anita Lamb, Margaret Couraw, and Gwendolyn Bushner (Castalians); Gilbert Fenix, Freeman Childress, John Gunn, and Lawrence Leonard (Gavel and Quill); Ned Smith, Norman Sharp, Donald Bell, Harry Richardson, Rogler Elliott, George Van Hoorebeke, Jefferson Herb, Dick Cole, Warren Gooch, Robert Richards, Robert Fowks, and Richard Fleischaker (Herculeans); Clarence Shelby, Paul Askins, Russell Duncan, Merlyn Perkins, Floyd Cozad, Harry Alles, Claude Parker, Garrett Morrison, Karl McReynolds, and Billy Brittain (L. C. F.'s); Jerry Calvin, Katherine Burris, Margaret Briggs, Jean Tyree (Olympiads); Charlotte Fry, Dawn Baney, Marjorie Sayles, Lois Draeger, Margaret Calbeck, Anita Carroll, Beverly Kee, Reba Holman (Philogians); Reba Mae Showalter, Frances Walker, Genevieve Smith, and Mary Jane Hill (Sapphonians); Ordie Morgans, Erwin Smith, Edward Cleaver (De Molays); Bob Breazeale, Hal Palmer, Paul Church, Warren Malang, Max Copple, William Dunham, Harold Bormaster, Ted Bormaster, Frank Shelby, Neale Pinet, Dorothy Longacre, Guy Greenwell, John Laster, Robert White, Valerie Meloy, Betty Ann Heinz, Alfred Jacobs, Bill Hamilton, Maxine Davis, Inez Thompson, Samuel Shapiro, and Edwin Hein (Independents).

1932 WINNING TEAM



Perkins Duncan Brittain McReynolds

The Spring Debate Tournament of 1932 resolved itself into nine rounds, sixteen pupils being in the semi-final, and eight in the final round.

By actual count, eighty-eight pupils debated; eighty-six pupils acted in capacity of chairmen, timekeepers, or sergeants-at-arms; eighty-two parents and friends served as judges. Many more gave encouragement to the activity by means of attendance and kindly words. Such co-operation has made the debating activity in our school a success, and each person is appreciated for the part he has contributed.

Not only teams of lower ranking, but also excellent teams were eliminated after the fifth round. In the eighth round (the semi-final) were these students who, although eliminated in this round, deserved honorable mention: Rogler Elliott, George Van Hoorebeke, Donald Bell, and Harry Richardson (Herculeans); Floyd Cozad and Harry Alles (L. C. F.'s)

There was held April 18 the final round, in which an L. C. F. group composed of Karl McReynolds, Billy Brittain, Russell Duncan, and Merlyn Perkins debated against a group composed of Ordie Morgan and Erwin Smith (DeMolays), and Paul Church and Warren Malang (Independents).

These eight contestants were all awarded minor J's.

Debaters were in every debate of the tournament given rankings by the various judges. The students receiving the two highest rankings were Warren Malang and Billie Brittain. To each of them was awarded a prize of five dollars.

The final debate was won by the L. C. F. team. To that group was awarded the coveted trophy, the Herculean Merit Cup.

Any group winning the loving cup three times in succession is privileged to keep it.

PRESENT SIGNIFICANCE OF THE CONSTITUTION

In considering our connection with the Constitution, we must first look back through the paths of development, or to our country's beginning, and to mark the suffering and achievement of our forefathers. The suffering and agony they endured made possible their achievements for the modern world. Among these none rises to the height of the Constitution. It is respected and acknowledged by the leading powers of the world as the most significant relation to man. The instinct of man from the very beginning was the love of liberty, and higher standards of living. So we have brought to a conclusion, after many years of experimenting, our Constitution. Daniel Webster has said, "It is the people's constitution, the people's government, made by the people, made for the people, and answerable to the people." But what is the present significance of the Constitution? It is answered by those who have taken particular interest in indulging in its significance as a part of their everyday life. Let us consider it as a fortress of inalienable rights, four of which are the foundation of our protection.

First is the right to liberty. Our Constitution obeys the law of God, that all men are created equal. That gives no man superiority over another. It means that every man has a right to justice; it signifies that one may conduct himself so that he may go where he pleases, come when he pleases, and live where he pleases. In general, it means to be free. Men from the very beginning of history have claimed this liberty. There is no other country today achieving the significance of the great American Constitution.

Second of our inalienable rights is freedom of mind. Every man has freedom of speech, and of the press; the right to choose his religious belief, whatever his race or color may be. This freedom our Constitution erects for the mind and conscience of every American.

Third of these significant rights is personal ownership. A man may own as much wealth as he may acquire. A man may enjoy this right to the farthest limit, and do whatever he wishes concerning his property, so long as he does not hinder in any way the general welfare. In this right a man is given a new light regarding life. He feels as though he were as rich as a man who may have treble his wealth, and he does all in his power to improve and obey the laws of our Constitution. This is a right which signifies to no man of any other as it does to the American citizen.

Last of these inalienable rights is the right in law. All people, no matter what positions they may hold, whether beggars or millionaires, have the same protection in our courts. Our government is a government of justice. Our laws are constructed to fit the condition of the people, not that of a monarch, or a tyrant. Justice before the law is our benefit. How could people be more fortunate? There is no word in any dictionary that would be sufficient to describe the significance of our Constitution. Then think what it means to indulge in these rights, to help form our laws, to govern our people, to secure the advantages which are so apparent, and, most of all, to be a citizen of the United States. Having these conditions in mind is not enough for the American people. They must think how to complete them. They must think how to appreciate these rights, so as to cease violating them.

And now that we have fulfilled our obligation, let it be printed in histories to show the coming generations how we appreciated and respected our Constitution, how we acknowledged it, and kept it the most outstanding accomplishment for the world. And may those who are being given the honor of receiving this valuable token take it with as much appreciation and gratitude as we have done, so that they can hand it down as we have handed it down to them. Let its highest significance be the meaning in the life of every American, and we shall continue up the path as rapidly and readily as our forefathers advanced.

THE JOPLIN LITERARY CONTESTS

The short story contest was sponsored again this year by the Tri-State Writers' Club, who offered prizes to the winners of first and second places in the story writing contest. First prize was won by Hope Hampton, second by Charlotte Fry, while Howard Thorpe received honorable mention.

The oration contest is a part of the national Constitution contest, sponsored in this state by the Kansas City Star. The local contest was under the auspices of the Herculean, the Gavel and Quill, the Athenaeum, and the L. C. F. boys' literary societies. The prize offered for first place was won by Harold Bormaster.

The poetry contest was sponsored by the following girls' literary societies: The Philogians, the Castalians, the Sapphonians, the Olympiads, the Atalantains, the Sigma Gamma Lambdas, and the Pheylons. First prize was won by Flo Staake, second prize by Mary Jo Miller, and honorable mention by Anita Lamb.

THE PRICE OF SCIENCE

Jimmy heaved a sigh of relief. At last everyone was gone. He would have two whole days to himself, with nothing to do. Right at the last moment he had been so afraid Aunt Allie would change her mind, but now she was gone, and the only sounds to be heard in the whole house were the steady ticking of the grandfather clock down stairs, and the moaning of the cold wind in the heavy branches of the low-hanging trees, accompanied by the steady patter of rain on the old tile roof. Jimmy wondered why it was so silent. Maybe it was just that this was the first chance he had had to be alone in such a long time.

He wandered around, hardly knowing what to do with himself, and then pulled up a comfortable chair by the fireplace. He glanced out the window. Low clouds, dark and forbidding, reminded him of Dr. Morsley. A strange person, this Dr. Morsley, about fifty years old, with gray eyes and thick iron gray hair. On short acquaintance he appeared to be reserved, unsympathetic, almost stern, but Jimmy knew that this wasn't true.

Most of the people in the town in which the doctor lived thought him "a bit queer." They all agreed that he was a good doctor, but they didn't understand his scientific reasonings. He used to say something of his experiments to a few acquaintances, but their ridicule or boredom had wounded his pride, so now he confided in no one save Jimmy. Strangely enough, in spite of the difference in their ages, the two were close friends. Jimmy saw nothing ridiculous in the doctor or his talk. He was working on a cure for that dreaded disease, spinal meningitis, and lately he seemed to be nearing the end of his experiments. Just last night he had talked to Jimmy.

"I think I've got it, son," he had said.

Jimmy was immediately excited. "Gee, I hope so, Doc. It seems to me I'm almost as interested in this as you are," he said, laughing a trifle apologetically. "I know I haven't done anything, but—"

The doctor spoke gravely, "You'll never know just how much you have done, Jimmy. Sometimes it seems as though I must talk to someone, and you're the only friend I have here." His voice broke and he paused.

Presently he went on. "I've been working on this for years, and tomorrow will finish the job, I think, one way or the other. It will either be a complete success or a complete failure. I've put out everything I know, and if it isn't right I can't do any more. You know, Jimmy, I've been experimenting on animals, and it seems to succeed, but tomorrow I'm going to have a human er—victim." He gave a short laugh, and Jimmy smiled. "You remember the little Hilton boy, Jimmy? the youngest one? He hasn't much chance as he is now—no chance at all for a complete recovery, and I'll give him one in a million. He trusts me absolutely, son, and if he dies, why—he'll have company, that's all." And with this the doctor was gone, Jimmy's alarmed call echoing in the empty house.

Even now, as he sat by the fire, it seemed he could hear the doctor's last words.

But he was just excited, Jimmy told himself. Surely, surely he wouldn't do it; he wouldn't have any cause, anyhow, Jimmy thought loyally. His thoughts began to wander, and he felt sleepy. His head began to droop, his eyes half closed. The flames in the fireplace burned low, gave a last courageous, dying leap, and collapsed to a few glowing embers. Jimmy sat in a half stupor, eyes fixed dazedly on the dying fire in which gradually seemed to be evolving the sober face of Dr. Morsley. Jimmy tried to collect his whirling thoughts, but he seemed dizzy, paralyzed, as one in a nightmare. The doctor's kindly gray eyes were sympathetic, and as he looked at Jimmy he smiled his sad, slightly one-sided, bewildered smile that, Jimmy said, somehow "made him look like a hurt kid." Then slowly, the face dissolved into thin gray smoke. Jimmy came to with a start, his hands clenched, eyes wide, his forehead wet with cold sweat.

"Great Heavens!" he whispered hoarsely, then laughed shakily. He rose and switched on the lights, for it was getting darker in the big room. He couldn't get his mind off the doctor. That nightmare had seemed so real, vivid. The light and clear reasoning soon calmed his shattered nerves, and he told himself he was a superstitious idiot to believe in such trash as dreams or warnings. At this very instant the telephone on the table by the chair rang, and Jimmy had a bad moment before he could persuade himself to answer it.

"Hello," he answered. "Oh, hello, Paul. Gee, I thought—What's that?" A look of anxiety, which quickly changed to one of horror, passed over his face. "The Hilton boy—Dr. Morsley," he murmured, then limply hung up the receiver.

The operation had been a failure—the boy had died—an "accidental" prick on the arm had caused the doctor's death—the nurse had called Dr. Ellis—too late—

Jimmy buried his head in his arms. "Why does Science take so many, so many—?" he muttered.

Again the fire burned low.

A PATH

There's a narrow brown path by the highway
Edged with wild flowers, dappled with light.
It twists for a while through a shadowy glade,
Then ambles away, out of sight.

I wonder where this path would lead me—
To some small mountain cottage, built high;
With orange fire-light glowing through windows,
And gray smoke curling up to the sky?

Perhaps this small pathway would take me
To the crest of that hill, high and free;
With the cotton-white clouds floating by in the blue:
Like the white-foamed waves float in the sea.

It might lead to the end of the rainbow,
Where the pot of gold lies; I don't doubt
That it leads to some secret—I don't know just what:
But I'm going, some day, to find out.

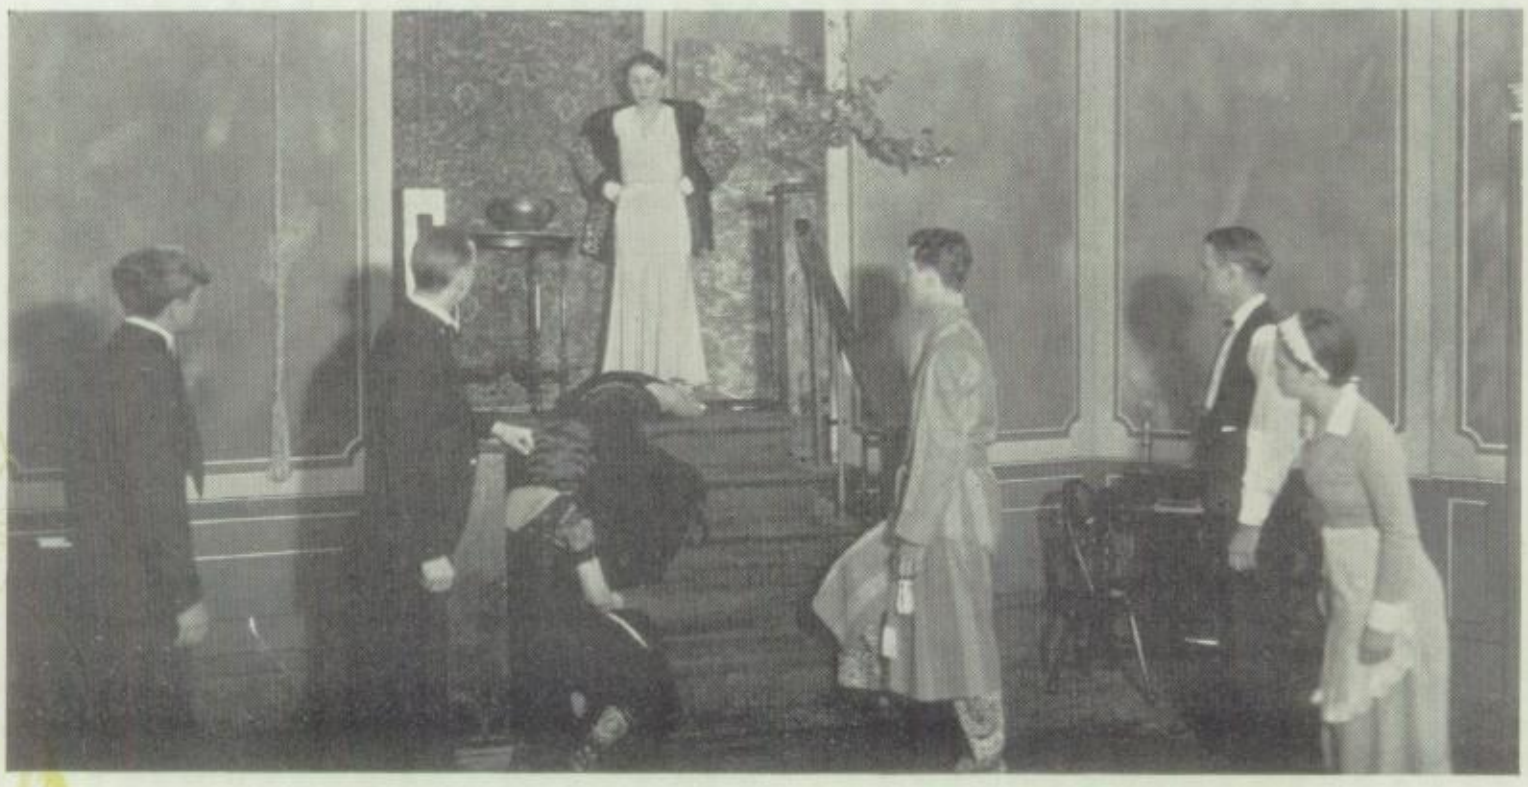
INTERPRETATION

SENIOR CLASS PLAY

"There's nothing half so sweet in life as love's young dream," Thomas Moore, an Irish poet, wrote a number of years ago. Such is the theme of the popular play, "Peg O' My Heart," a three-act comedy by J. Hartley Manners, given by the senior class on Thursday and Friday, April 14 and 15 in the school auditorium. The play, made famous by Loretta Taylor, who played the leading role many times, has had approximately 10,000 amateur performances. It is a play packed with wholesome Irish philosophy, humorous situations, and delightful bits of romance.

The story of the play is of a little Irish girl who is taken over by her aristocratic aunt. Her mother is dead and her father is in America lecturing on Home Rule for Ireland. She has been brought up by her father, and her manners are not so good as those of her well-bred, lady-like cousin, Ethel, but in the end she wins out. The scenes of the play are laid at her aunt's country home "Regal Villa," Scarborough, England. The three acts have to do with "The Coming of Peg," "The Rebellion of Peg," and "Peg O' My Heart."



SENIOR CLASS PLAY

"Peg O' My Heart" was presented by two casts chosen from the 1932 senior class. Both plays, given under the able direction of Miss Wynett Barnett, dramatic coach of Joplin High School, were exceptionally well produced and enacted. The two casts, presenting the play on successive nights, were very nearly equal in histrionic abilities and displayed a great deal of dramatic talent. Few casts of high school students have given a more finished performance.

The cast for the two performances were as follows, with the first student named with each character acting the part on Thursday night: Mrs. Chichester—Flo Staake, Mary Elizabeth Farnham; Alaric—Robert Bullard, Fred Carl; Ethel Chichester—Betty Gregg, Helen Crouch; Montgomery Hawkes—Edward Cleaver, William McKee; Christian Brent—Jack Rodarme, Don Robbins; Jarvis—Clarence Skelton, Jack Moore; Bennett—Leah Famuliner, Doris Linn; Jerry—Armand Helm, William Voelker; Peg—Rose Carmel, Sara Nelle Pickett.

The stage settings, prepared by students, were attractive and special lighting effects, managed by the student technical staff, added much to the production.

JUNIOR CLASS PLAY

The Junior Class Play, "Polly with a Past," was given in the school auditorium on Thursday night, December 10. The amusing three-act comedy by Guy Bolton and George Middleton was very well staged and enacted.

The play has to do with the clever efforts of a girl to manufacture for herself a picturesque past in order to make herself more interesting and attractive. The little deceit gets many persons into trouble, but Polly and her friends eventually turn the trouble to good account, and Polly finds herself—after the secret is divulged—even more interesting and attractive than before, despite her desperate confession of being the daughter of a Baptist clergyman.

Charlotte Fry played the part of the versatile Polly, while Milton Ebersole, Mary Curtis Chenoweth, Donald Bell, Langdon Merrill, Dorothy Eggert, Thelma McIntosh, Harry Richardson, William Belk, Howard Haubein, Dick Wells, and Rosemary Lowdermilk made up the remainder of the able cast.

PLAY PRODUCTION

Miss Wynett Barnett, teacher of speech and dramatics coach of Joplin High School, has done some very commendable work this year. Her expression classes have given some finished and clever one-act plays in assembly, which were greatly enjoyed by the entire student body.

Miss Barnett also directed the junior class play and two performances of the senior class play. In these productions she was assisted by efficient faculty and student committees.

The following are the junior play committees:

Play selection committee: Mary Curtis Chenoweth, Paul Askins and Mary Frances Lawrence.

Faculty committee: Miss Emma Price, Miss Laura Wolfe and Mr. A. L. Pry.

Business staff: Paul Askins and Henry Lee Mills, business managers; George Van Hoorebeke, ticket chairman; Clinton Dearing and Melvin Youngblood, assistant ticket chairmen; Jack Rauch, head usher.

Properties committee: Rosemary Lowdermilk, Maxine Robitaille, Esther Kitto, Dixie Wilson and Louise Roehling.

Cosmeticians: Misses Emma and Imo Price.

Bookholder: Ruth Melton.

For the senior class plays these committees were selected:

Play selection committee: Mary Elizabeth Farnham, Doris Linn, Dorothy Messick and Jack Rodarme.

Faculty committee: Miss Emma Price and Mr. Hobart Sallee.

Business staff: Evan Godfrey, business manager; Merlyn Perkins, chairman of ticket sales; Junior Havens, assistant; David Dillon, head usher.

Properties committee: Franklyn Tonnies and Irene Dempsey.

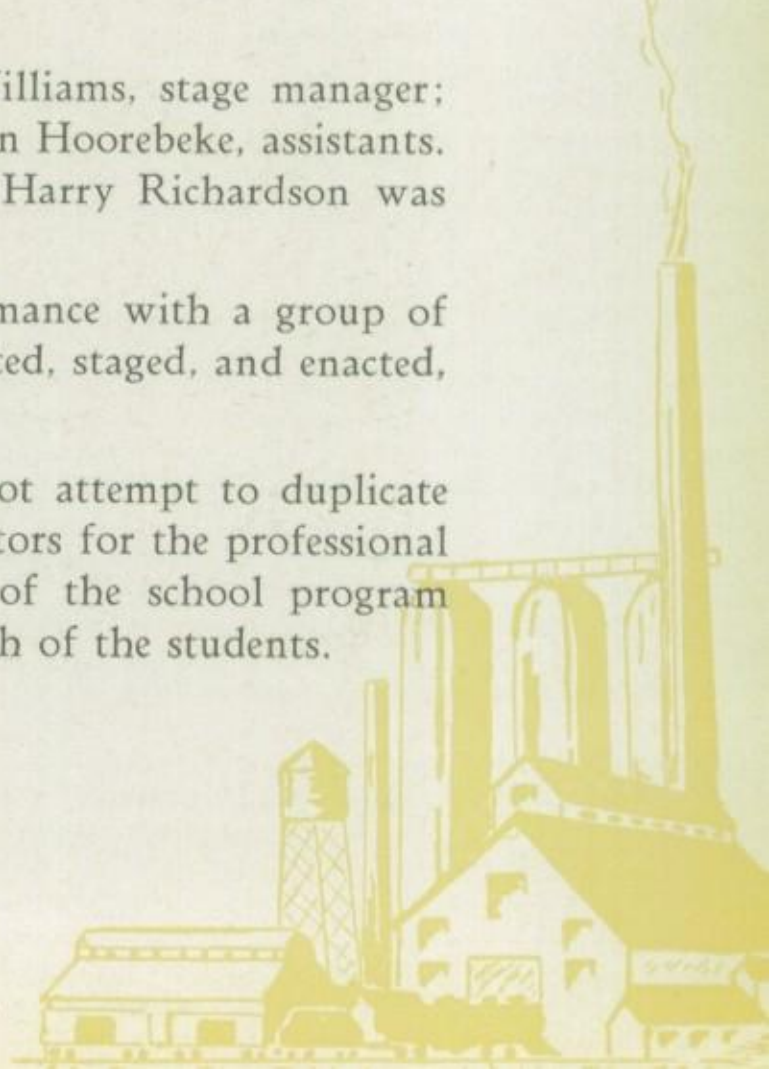
Cosmeticians: Misses Emma and Imo Price and Mr. Robert Eldredge.

Bookholders: Flossie Webb and Florence Fahrig.

The stage staff for all plays consisted of: Earle Williams, stage manager; Frank Pickett, Bob Clay, John McGehee and George Van Hoorebeke, assistants. Burnell Van Pelt was in charge of special effects and Harry Richardson was head electrician.

The dramatics department closed its year of performance with a group of delightful one-act plays in May. They were well directed, staged, and enacted, and much appreciated by the audience.

In the high school productions Miss Barnett does not attempt to duplicate Broadway productions, nor does she attempt to train actors for the professional stage. The high school plays are produced as part of the school program because it is felt that they contribute much to the growth of the students.



FOUNTAIN MEMORIAL

God sent a bouquet from Heaven above,
Which was placed in a crystal bowl for you and me to love;
He sent a sample of each choice flower;
Then with evergreen he bordered this enchanted bower.
Fragrant lilies, delicate orchids, budding roses of rainbow hue
Were clasped by silver ribbons, then, tied with bits of chiffon and velvet blue.

Perhaps it was a fairy ship floating there,
With a cargo of brilliant jewels ever so rare.
Mermaids came from beneath the water's cool depth,
To catch a glimpse from the ship's reflecting deck.

Look! A flash of fire wafting in the sky,
Now, a green spray towering as high:
Even the Angels descended from Heaven where they could sit and bathe,
In the fresh stream from Fountain of Faith.

All these wonders that only miracles render,
Were born in that fountain of dazzling splendor;
Peace—quiet—a place where the tired soul may rest,
With the soft, vibrant sounds of the distant chimes floating within your breast.

Thousands of on-looking people remember this as a sweet treasure display before their sight;
Look again. Can you not see one as beautiful in our Fountains of Life?

MUSICAL ORGANIZATIONS

Officers:

President, Perry Hurlbut. Secretary, Helen Crouch.

Our musical organizations are again entered in the Inter-state Contest at Pittsburg. They won many honors for our school and community in the contests at Springfield, Pittsburg, and Columbia last year. The band was rated among the highest in the National Band Contest at Tulsa.

This year the marching units are the boys' drum and bugle corps, formed this year, the girls' drum corps, and the band, which has been divided into two parts for marching purposes. The girls' glee club and the boys' glee club, which combine to form the mixed chorus, the orchestra, and the all-school chorus make up our concert ensembles.

The bands played for both the Fall and Spring Window Displays, the Annual Harvest Show at Neosho, and they joined the other marching units at the football games, the DeMolay Convention, the Santa Claus parade, and the Easter Egg Hunt.

The orchestra and the mixed chorus furnished a Sunday afternoon program at the Scottish Rite Cathedral in the fall, and on March 4, the orchestra presented a concert of selections from some of the light operas. A selected orchestra played for the dramatics departments presentations.

The boys' glee club with the assistance of a few others, presented a delightful Minstrel and Vaudeville on March 31.

The closing event of the musical year was the Annual Spring Concert given by the music department on April 19.

The Joplin High School R. O. T. C. unit has an enrollment of approximately 320 boys. It is composed of one battalion with four companies. Ceremonies are held each Wednesday morning during the activity hour. These ceremonies are made more impressive by our cadet band of nearly 100 members. We have reason to be proud of our band, as it has won a number of state honors. The unit and band take part in practically all parades held on holidays and other special occasions.

Each year cadet commissions ranking as high as lieutenant-colonel are given out. The boy having the highest military average during his sophomore and junior years receives the commission of lieutenant colonel. William Gardner won this coveted honor this year. A senior girl, selected by popular vote of the cadets, is awarded the position of honorary lieutenant-colonel. The honor was won this year by Helen Warden. She and Gardner head the staff, whose other members are: Jack Rodarme, captain adjutant; Joe Russell Dodson, personnel adjutant; Jack Williams, range officer; and William Voelker, sergeant-major. The staff, under the direction of Captain Allison and Sergeant Collier, supervises all military activities.

At graduating ceremonies each year the R. O. T. C. is inspected by an officer from the Seventh Corps Area. Since 1925 our unit has been designated by this officer as an "Honor Unit." This rating is based on not only the appearance and proficiency of our unit, but also on the well kept appearance of our building and grounds, and the attitude of the pupils and the citizens toward the R. O. T. C. We are hopeful of attaining this honor rating again this year when an inspection is held on May third.

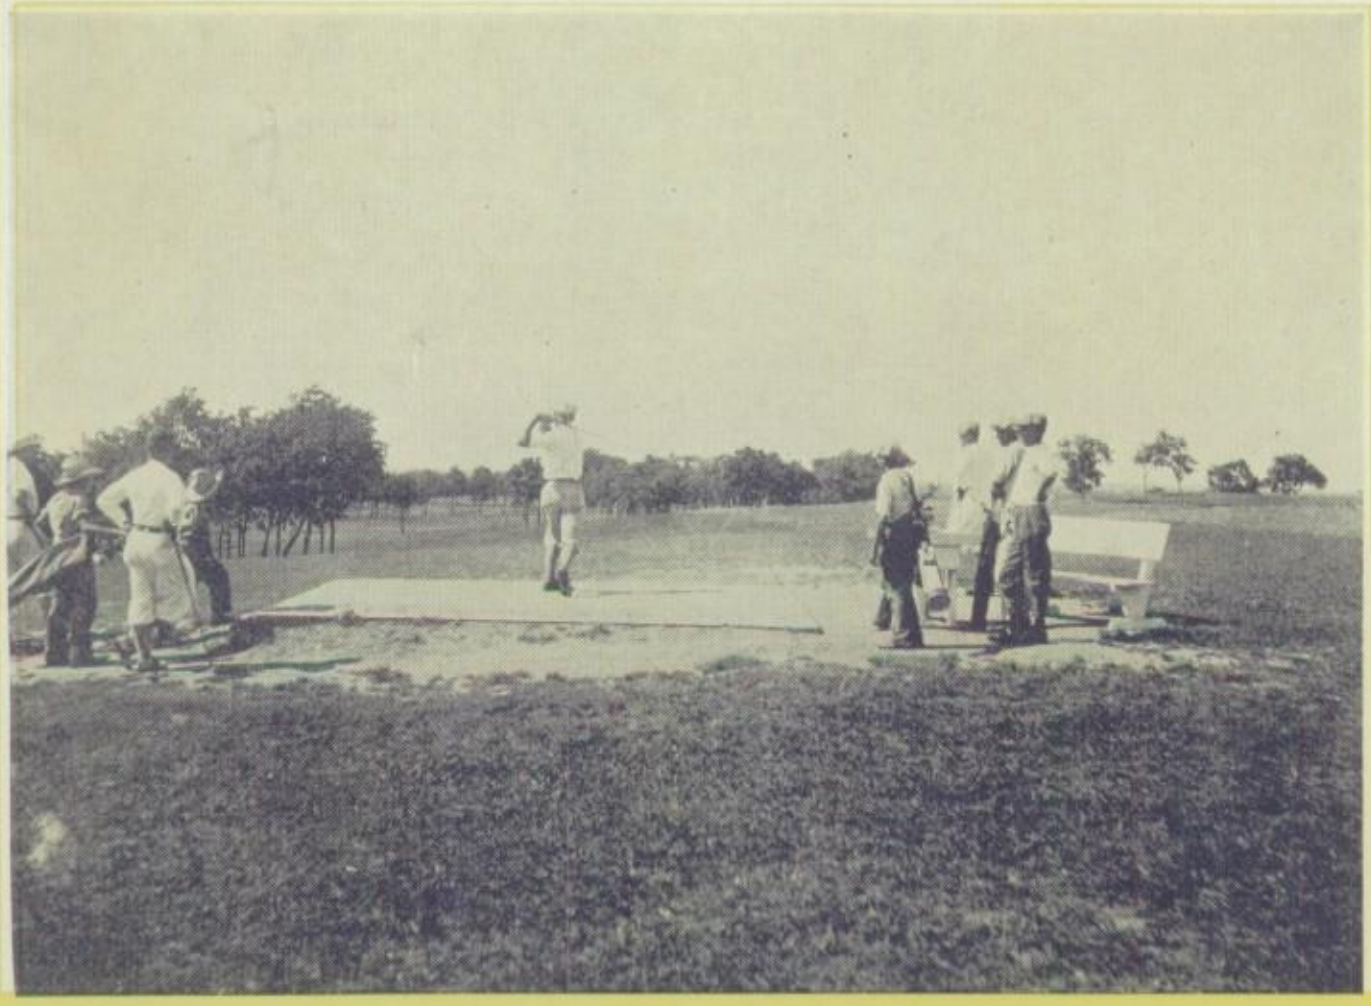
Diamond and Disc.

MILITARY HONORS

The school rifle team is composed of fifteen boys selected on a competitive basis. These boys fire at the matches conducted by the Seventh Corps Area. The members shooting the ten highest scores from this match are selected to fire in the Hearst Matches. These matches are held by the Hearst Publications in high schools all over the country. The boys who fire this match are awarded minor letters.

At the close of school each year, in connection with our annual R. O. T. C. inspection, contests are held to determine the best drilled cadet in the unit. Any member of the unit except cadet officers may compete. The contest was won last year by Guy Tadlock. A contest was also conducted to pick the best rifle shot. This was won by John Roberts. Both contest winners were awarded medals.

The Diamond and Disc is a society formed of all the commissioned cadet officers of the unit. Only officers are eligible for membership. The society was formed at the beginning of the school year and Jack Rodarme was elected president. Capt. Allison, our military science instructor, is the sponsor. The purpose of the society is to increase the efficiency of our officers, and thus better the unit.



SCHIFFERDECKER GOLF COURSE

Joplin's municipal golf course at Schifferdecker Park is the scene of much inter-city competition. Good sportsmanship and clean character development are the aims of our athletic department in its inter-school competition.

COMPETITORS

The 1931 football campaign in Joplin High School was opened on August 15, with Coach E. O. Humphrey's call for gridiron candidates.

Mr. Humphrey resumed his duties as a teacher and coach of boys' athletics in Joplin High after an absence of seven years, during which he held the position of physical education supervisor of the Joplin public school system.

Coach Humphrey

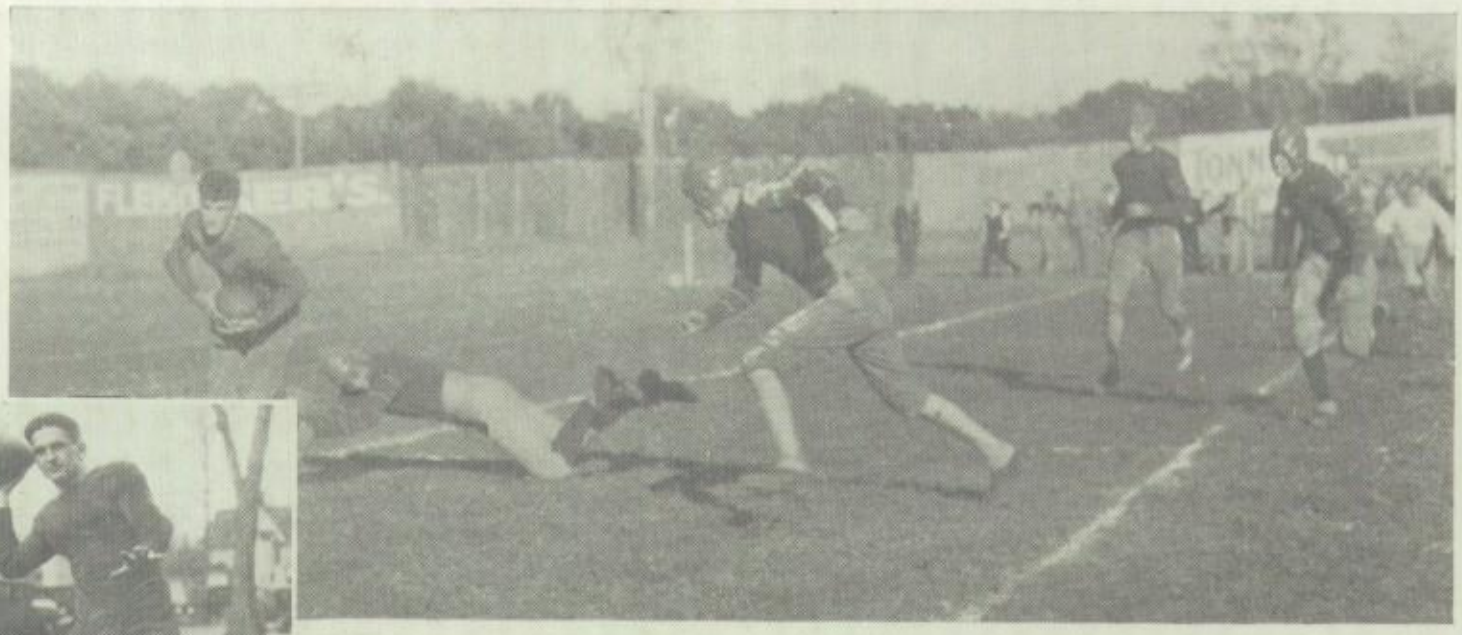
Coach Humphrey early manifested the fighting spirit, vigorous character and staccato speech which endeared him to every athlete. A noteworthy feature of "Ump's" gridiron policy was his efforts to provide competition for the reserve material, in addition to the varsity games. In meeting the stiff opposition confronted on a ten-game schedule, Humphrey allowed an unusually large number of boys to exploit their gridiron prowess.

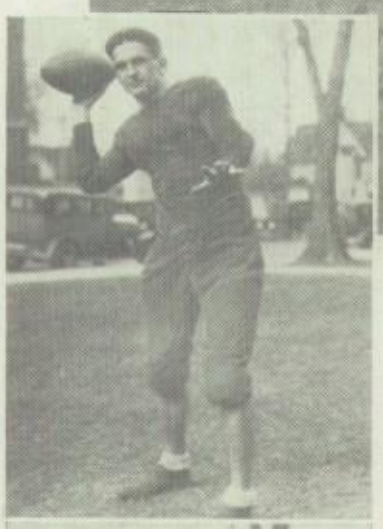
Considering the lack of experienced men, and the caliber of opposition encountered, the season's results place a stamp of approval on Coach Humphrey's herculean efforts to develop a winning combination. Since the 1931 squad was composed largely of sophomores and juniors, prospects for next year's eleven appear very promising.

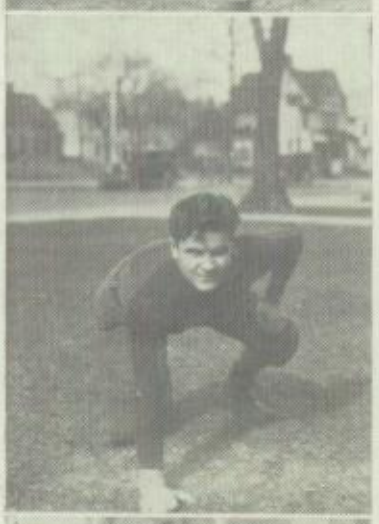
At the annual football banquet sponsored by the Sapphonian Literary Society, Chester Chickering, veteran end, was elected honorary captain for the current season.

The Squad.

FOOTBALL







Wichita Game.

George Cox, a flying flash on the be-ribboned field, polished off his football career at Joplin High with a season of play exceptionally brilliant. His ball-handling, exact passing and dazzling open field running made him the kingpin of the offense.

This smiling countenance represents the living likeness of one George Tatum, who with admirable determination and persistence worked hard to fit himself for the Humphrey plan of action. George was a guard, and a good one too.

Bob Clay, a stalwart guard, kept up the family tradition of a long line of predecessors to add his name to the Joplin gridiron register of '31. He always dealt out plenty of punishment, and quelled many an uprising in opposing forward walls. Great work, Bob.

Leslie Carlin, a steady, powerful gridster, played center in every game on the schedule. This likeable chap bolstered the team spirit in the crucial contests with his deadly tackling in backing up the line. Carlin was a dependable snapper-back and an outstanding defensive lineman.

FOOTBALL

Baxter Game.

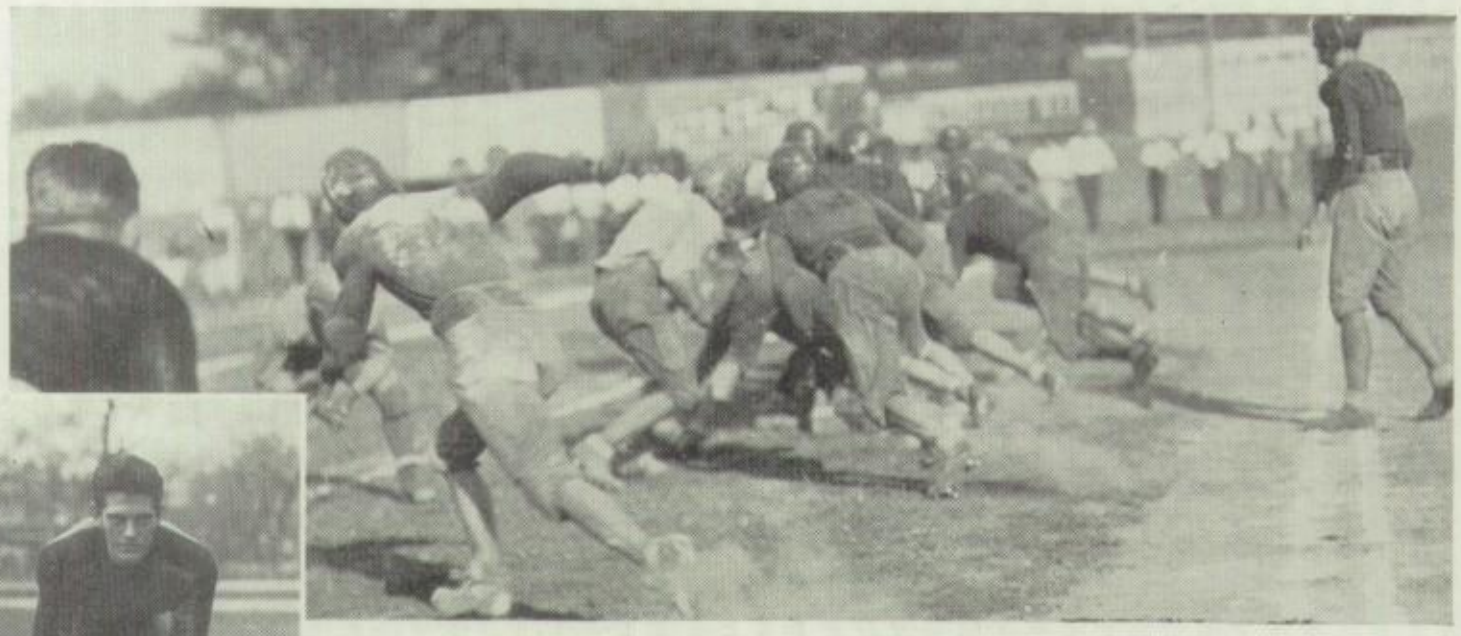
Across the field came a thundering voice, "Fight 'em men! fight 'em!" And forthwith its possessor, Bob Marcum, slammed an opponent to old terra firma in his own copyrighted manner. Marcum, the aggressive, was a bulwark at tackle.

A stocky boy from South Junior High, known as Dick Ash, developed into a hard-hitting guard under the tutelage of Coach Humphrey. Ash was a strong defensive player and he is expected to be a vital cog in next year's gridiron machine.

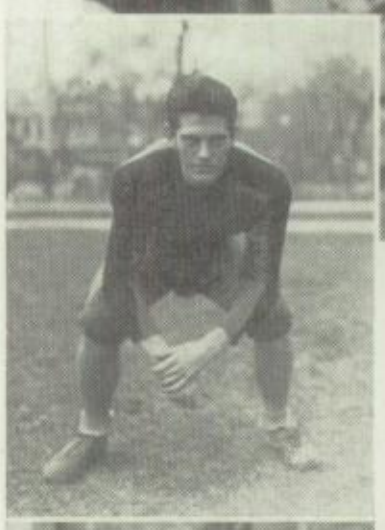
Tow-headed Junior Wehrer, a slight, fleet youth from Nebraska, was a hard working utility back for the Red and Green last fall. Wehrer no longer lives in Joplin but we are sure he will make a fine record wherever the gridiron beckons him. Let's give fifteen for Wehrer.

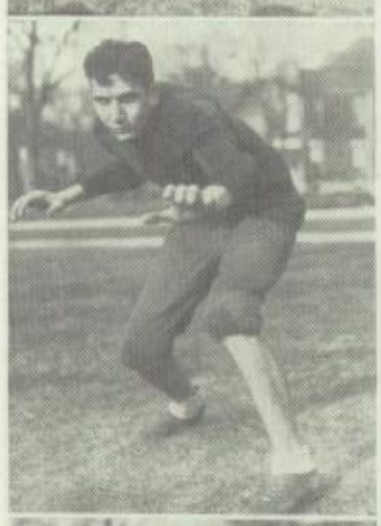
Introducing that flashy ball-toting halfback, Barton Smith, a moleskin marvel who tackled, blocked, and lugged the ball with reckless abandon. This abbreviated lad was especially noted for his dynamic line thrusts.

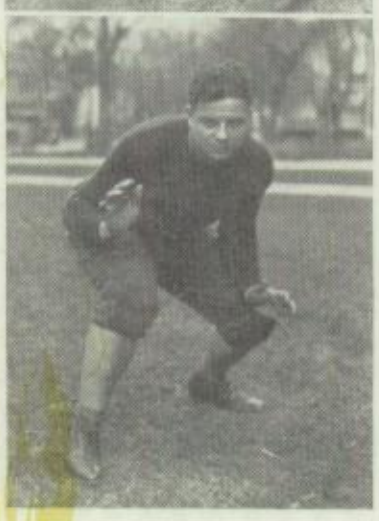
FOOTBALL



Miami Game.







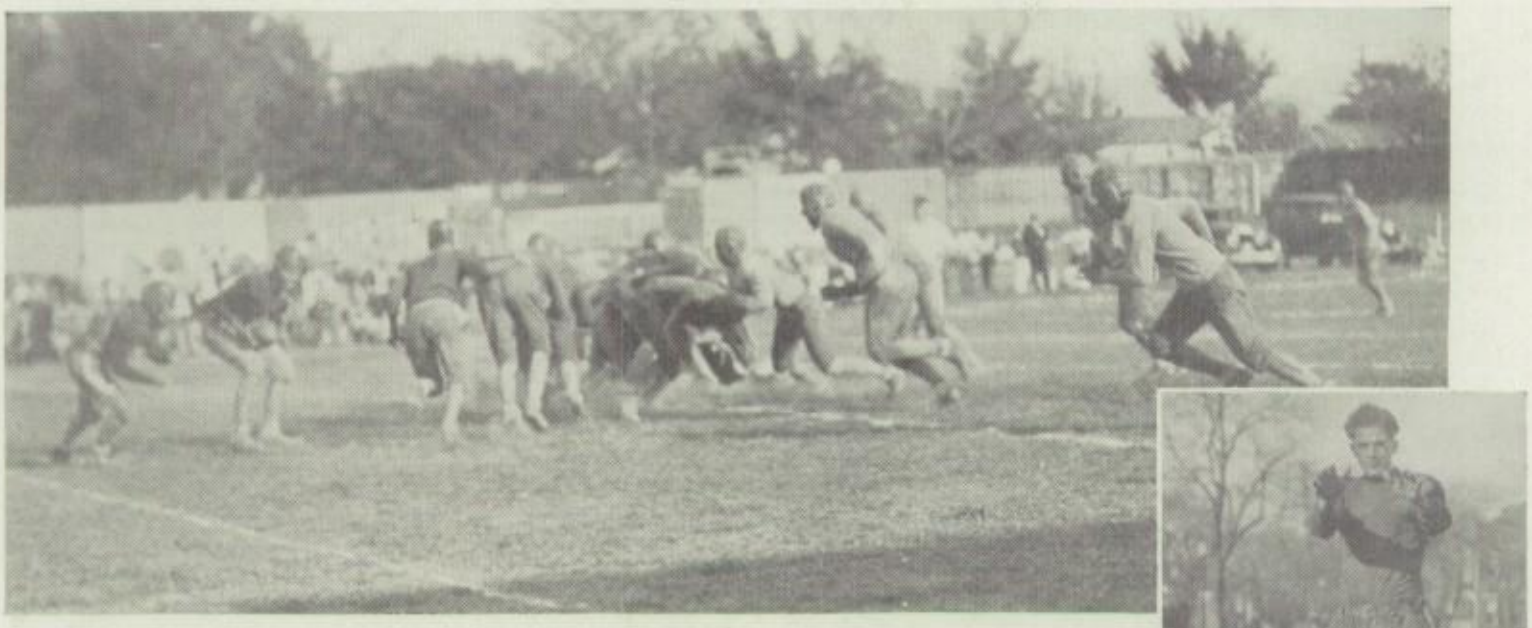
Arthur Jones, a versatile youth, used his speed to advantage in filling in at end and halfback positions on the Eagle eleven. Art was a steady and dependable player at all times, but he was especially capable in the pinches. Another season awaits this conscientious worker.

A fighting heart and the physical attributes of scrap and aggressiveness made Chester "Chick" Chickering an outstanding performer in his final season of play at an end position. As a result of putting his whole heart and soul into every contest, Chickering was elected honorary captain for the season.

C. O. Smith, a rangy end, completed his football career at Joplin High School with another season of consistent, splendid playing. "Cy" will be remembered for his cool, alert actions, especially in the pinches and when the Red and Green was faltering.

The operations of John Sohosky at tackle were characterized by his annihilating disposition which enabled him to trample his quaking adversaries when he slid his 210 pounds into a tackle berth. John played an aggressive, "heads up" game throughout the season.

FOOTBALL



Grove Game.

Ladies and gentlemen, we shall next treat you to Clare Fletcher's specialty, a long, spiral punt from his educated toe. Clare, directing the team at quarterback while Robbins recuperated from injuries, demonstrated nice generalship and punting ability. Another moleskin campaign faces the hard-running Fletcher.

Harold Brickell, veteran tackle, slashed a niche forever in the hearts of local fans by the merits of his hard-charging tactics that he demonstrated in every fray. Making innumerable tackles on the defense, Brickell was the mainstay of the Joplin line.

With the inauguration of practice last fall, a fleet, brainy lad, answering to the name of Don Robbins, was slated to bear the punting burden during the strenuous campaign. Although seriously handicapped by injuries, the "Pajama Kid" directed the attack from the quarterback post. He seldom failed to gain in an exchange of punts.

The husky, red-thatched Bill DeGraffenreid whom you see awaiting the pigskin was not viewed as calmly by Joplin's gridiron rivals when "Germany" plunged in their proximity. Great things are expected of Bill on the '32 eleven.

Lettermen whose pictures are not shown, include: Paul Saunders, a blocking back; Glaze, a hard-tackling end; Morlan, an aggressive guard; and Rutherford, who played halfback or tackle.

The opening game on the schedule, the Webb City conflict, saw Joplin lose a close decision, 6-2. In successive home games, the Eagles bowed before the Miami club; fought a scoreless tie with Grove, Okla.; played a scoreless deadlock with Baxter Springs, Kans.; and met defeat at the hands of the Wichita aggregation. On Armistice Day, the fracas with Carthage ended, 0-0. At Nevada, the homelings were nosed out in the closing minutes, 7-0.

On behalf of the student body, we express our appreciation to Sergeant D. W. Collier, U. S. Army, and to Buford Potts, N. U., for their able coaching services during the 1931 season.

BASKETBALL

Pep Club.

Winners of second place honors in the annual Missouri state high school basketball championships, by the first team ever to represent the Red and Green at that tournament, was the fitting climax to what was, perhaps, the most successful basketball season that Joplin High has experienced. Basketball lettermen are: Captain C. O. Smith, center; guards: Cox, Davis, Roy Longstreet, Jones and Chickering; forwards: Gates, Ray Longstreet, Axelberg, Howerton, and Johnson.

The Joplin quintet, coached by E. O. Humphrey, held Rockhurst of Kansas City, without a field goal for twenty-one minutes in the finals, only to lose out in the closing minutes by two points, 15-17. The Eagles had previously defeated St. Joseph, 21-18; Columbia, 20-19; and Jefferson City, 21-16; in the semi-finals.

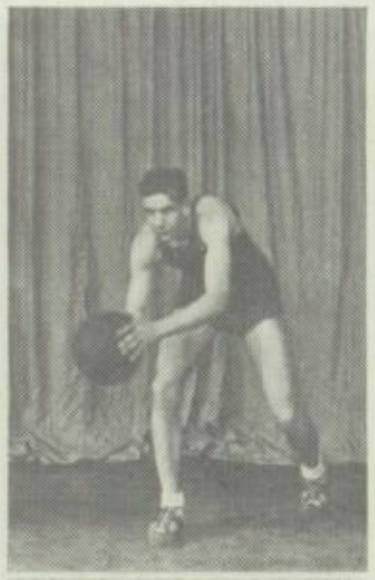
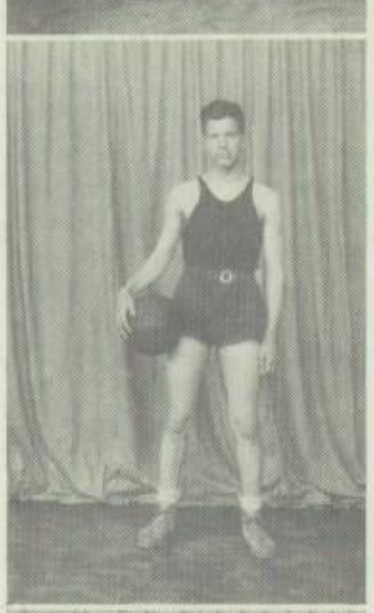
BOYS' BASKETBALL

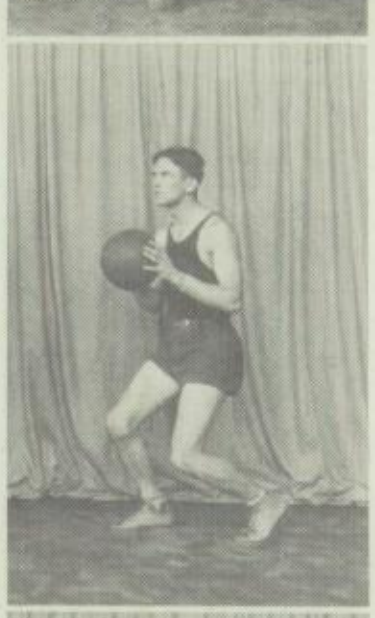
Jack Gates was a cool, heady forward who had a knack of pulling games out of the fire with his timely goal shooting. Gates was an All-State selection for forward.



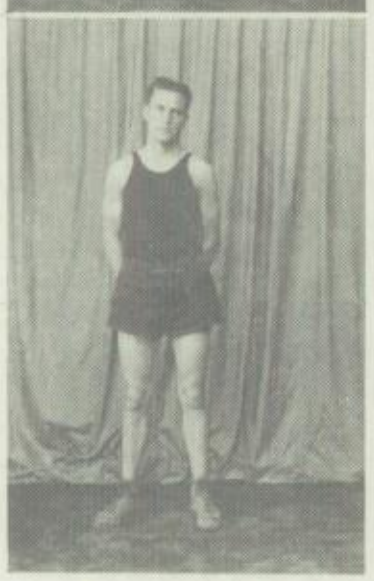
Captain C. O. Smith, center, demonstrated polished foot work, and a consistent, aggressive court game. "Cy" was seldom outjumped at center.



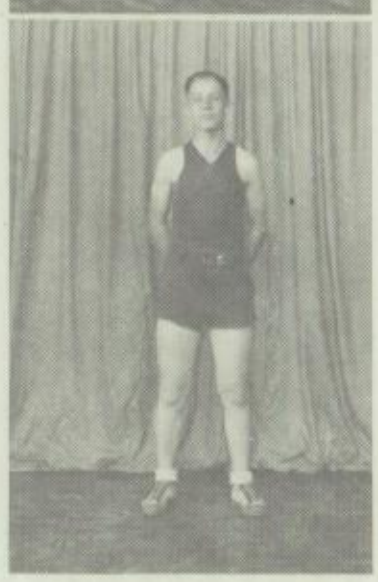
Russell Davis was acclaimed by critics as the outstanding defensive guard at the state tournament. Davis is an artist at ball handling.



George Cox, flashy guard, was the high-scorer of the team. A fast, shifty floor man, with an accurate eye for the basket. Cox was chosen All State guard at Columbia.



Ray Longstreet, forward, played a fast, snappy, short-passing game to twitch the net regularly in every game. His floor work drew much favorable comment.



Charles Axelberg played a fine brand of basketball at forward. A great competitor and teamworker. "Chuck" scored heavily in the pinches.

Boys' Basketball Squad.

GIRL'S BASKETBALL

Flossie Webb, senior, was captain and running center of the 1931-32 girls' basketball sextet. Her wonderful cooperation and team spirit was inspiring to her co-workers.

Pauline Garrison, junior, a fast, skillful, accurate shooting forward, led the team in individual scoring, with 283 total points.

Athie Foster, junior, played forward on the sextet. She was best known for her deadly shots from any angle on the floor, but her ball-passing ability was very outstanding.

Gladys Edwards, junior, controlled the tip-off at center from all opposition. Her consistent, aggressive tactics and fine sportsmanship pervaded in every contest.

Geneva Treece, junior, broke up many an enemy pass in playing guard position. Her frequent difficult shots were a continual threat.

Maxine Garrison, junior demonstrated unusual guarding talent throughout the twelve game schedule. Her attitude revealed a constant team spirit.

TRACK

Track.

An unprecedented fervor for spring athletics has taken Joplin High School students this year. Although track, with a score of individual performers, holds the spotlight, keen rivalry has been experienced in inter-class baseball, golf, tennis, volley ball and fencing.

The Joplin track crew, selected through early season tryouts, is composed of the following athletes: Lachman, sprinter; Grayston, dashman and broad-jumper; Mitz, sprinter and high jumper; Gates, pole vaulter and high jumper; Roy Longstreet, high jumper; Pickett, high hurdler; Cox, high jumper and quarter-miler Rauch, 440-yard dashman; Hardwick, pole vaulter; Jacobs, putter; Jones, weight man; Brickell, shot putter and broad jumper; Patterson, broad jumper; Crane, pole vaulter; Crosby, quarter-miler; and Sampson, discus thrower.

On April 14, the Sarcoxie Bears were defeated here, 64 to 40.

The Herculeans claim the honor of being the oldest literary society in the high school, having been founded December 5, 1922. The purpose of the society has been to promote debate and oratory, an aim which has been carried out by the fact that each year its members have won honors in the state and inter-society tournaments. The club holds at present the following major officers: President of the Student Council; junior and senior class presidents; lieutenant colonel, and editor of the Spyglass, besides numerous minor officers in military and literary activities in the school.

The Gavel and Quill Literary Society, one of the oldest and most popular clubs at Joplin High School, had a very successful year in 1931-32. They had the honor of having, from their membership, the captain-adjutant, business and advertising managers of the Joplimo, advertising manager of the Spyglass, V.-presidents of the senior and junior classes, leads in the class plays, and many minor offices. They had five entries in the spring debate tournament and one member on the state debate team. Their assembly on March 11 was very amusing and clever and was much enjoyed by the entire student body.

The L. C. F. programs are given over to the discussion of questions of general interest. As public speaking is our major activity, we had eleven strong contenders in the intra-mural debate tournament. A four-man team composed of Perkins, Duncan, Brittain, and McReynolds was declared the winner, and awarded the Fleischaker debate trophy. Our organization is well represented on the Joplimo and Spyglass staffs, as well as in the orchestra and band. The scholarship average has been very high this year.

The Sapphonian Literary Society took for its topic this year, "Women and Their Vocations." Interesting programs on this subject were given throughout the year. Two assemblies were given which were much enjoyed by the entire school. The first was a pep assembly and the other a comparison of past and present customs. As usual the Sapphonians were represented in the short story and poem contests and in the debates. The secretary of the Student Council, the honorary lieutenant colonel, the drum major and many class officers were Sapphonians.

The Philogian Literary Society, organized to promote interest in the best literary efforts of the world and to promote friendship among the members, had a very enterprising year. The programs were based on the study of noted authors and composers, and their works. There were six members on the Joplimo and Spyglass staffs, and three members were entered in the debate. The feminine lead in the junior class play was a member of the society. Baskets of food, clothing, and toys were given to the needy at Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Debating is the main interest of the Castalian Literary Society. They entered three teams in the spring tournament and had one member on the regular high school debate team. All the teams entered in the spring debate tournament showed exceptionally fine training and ability. The year's programs were on the subject, "Authors, Their Lives and Works." Instructive and entertaining programs on this topic were given in the weekly meetings. These programs, planned and given by the girls themselves, proved very interesting.

G. R. Sec.: Mrs. Friedheim.

1931-32 was an interesting year for the Girl Reserves. Their theme for the first semester was "My Ideal Girl." Talks were given by outside speakers on personalities, types, character, clothes, posture, etc. The second semester the topic was "The Indian." Most of the programs on this subject were planned and given by the girls themselves and were extremely interesting. The girls had charge of the candy sales at the football games and realized enough money from them to send fifteen delegates to the Mid-Winter Conference for G. R.'s at Muskogee, Oklahoma.

Garrison, V.-pres., 1st and 2nd Sem.; Wristen, Pres., 1st Sem., Reporter, 2nd Sem.; M. Garrison, Temple, Secy.-Treas., 1st Sem.; Heaton, Patterson.

Established
November, 1930.

Colors: Blue and White.

Flower: Hawthorne.

Motto:
"Better Bodies, Better Minds."

Sponsor: Miss Krieckhaus.

The "M" Club is made up of girls who are working for a State Letter. A girl must earn a thousand points to receive the letter. Points are given for good health, a perfect body, high scholarship for one or two years, good sportsmanship, spirit of service, and ability to do gymnastics and games. Since a hundred points may be earned by walking one hundred miles in ten hikes, the girls went on several long tramps on Saturdays and after school. They hiked to Duenweg, Galena, Redings Mill, and McClelland. They also took up roller skating and often had skating parties to Duenweg and other neighboring towns. Other points may be earned by making a grade of S or E in folk dances. In the bi-monthly meetings after school, these dances were practiced and thoroughly enjoyed. Track, swimming, and baseball teams were organized in the spring and the girls all earned many points in these sports. All of the fifteen active members seemed to be headed toward their letters.

Sponsor: Mr. Sallee.

Motto:
"All the world's a stage. The people are the actors."
Hon. Sponsor: Miss Barnett.

The Maskers opened the scholastic year with two tryouts from which valuable material was received. The talents of the new members were displayed and developed in the social meetings and in the presentation of the play, "Fever Ward," given in Assembly, April 29. In closing the spring semester, the Maskers felt that they had further carried the aims of the organization to a new height in the eyes of Joplin High School.

Sponsor: Mr. Oldham.

The Teachers' Training Club was organized in October, 1923. It is for the senior teachers' training students only and, as a result, has all new members each year. The purpose of the club is to promote interest in the profession of teaching as well as in the course in high school. In addition it gives training in literary work and parliamentary law. The year 1931-1932 was full of successful and interesting events for the members of the club. Many worthwhile and major activities were accomplished, such as frequent doughnut sales, candy sales, and donation of Thanksgiving and Christmas baskets to unfortunate families of the city.

Calendar of Events:

Hallowe'en Party Oct. 30, 1931.

"Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."

The Quill and Scroll, international honorary society for high school journalists, has an active chapter in Joplin High School. Members of Joplimo or Spyglass staffs with a scholastic average of 80, a recommendation from the sponsor, and the approval of the national board of Quill and Scroll, may be eligible for membership. The purpose of the organization is to instill in students the ideal of scholarship, to advance the standards of the profession of journalism, to promote exact and dispassionate thinking, and clean and forceful writing. The two-dollar dues include: Membership fee, gold pin, and a one-year subscription to the international journalistic magazine, "The Quill and Scroll." Although the club is a comparatively new one in Joplin, much interest has been shown in its development.

PHILO PHRONIANS

Established 1930.

Flower: Violet.

Colors:
Blue and Silver.

Motto:
"Forward ever—backward never."

Sponsor: Miss Krieckhaus.

The purpose of this society is to study travel, etiquette and personality, and to better fit us for outside knowledge and fuller enjoyment of outside life than we could do ourselves individually.

In their programs the Philo Phronians traveled through China and Japan, studying each section of the country and its habits of life. They also have studied the political situation of Russia, particularly the Five-Year Plan and its adaptability to the United States.

Officers for the first and second semesters were: Pres., Bill Vicory, Naydeen Prutzman; V.-pres., Naydeen Prutzman, Beatrice Barton; Secy., Beatrice Barton, Walter Meador; Treas., Ordie Morgan, Walter Meador; Serg.-at-arms, Paul Saunders, Archie Llewellyn.

OTHER CLUBS

The Fencing Club, sponsored by Mr. Henley, has been very active this year. A tournment was given April 16 to decide the best fencer. Several social affairs were held during the year at the homes of the members. At the end of the second semester, there was formed an archery club, which enjoyed many good times. Officers of the Fencing Club were: Frances Smith, president; Louise Myers, V.-president; Demps Ena Southard, treasurer; Shirley Sullens, secretary; Ruth Price, reporter.

The H. P. O. R. H. is a club formed by the geology class every year. The officers of the organization for this year were: Jeanne Dixon, Landslide, (Pres.); Irene Dempsey, Avalanche, (V.-pres.); Ordie Morgan, Rolling Stone, (Secy.) Several interesting programs on geological subjects were planned and given by the members on certain Friday afternoons. Several interesting and instructive field trips were made under the leadership of the sponsor, Mr. Buskett. Grand Falls, the old lime kiln, and other places of geological interest were visited. In the spring, the club studied mineralogy and went on field trips to the marble quarry, and the A. B. C. and Ethel Gray Mines.

The Ag Club was very active in 1931-32. Under the direction of Mr. Pry, many interesting projects were started. The club met on Thursday mornings at the activity period and instructive and entertaining programs along agricultural lines were given. Agricultural products, received from different manufacturing companies in the United States, were collected and put into a "museum" which will be added to next year. These products, about 150 in number, were studied and reported on—even analyzed. Interesting field trips were made in the vicinity. Several picnics and parties were enjoyed by the club.

The purpose of the Phelyon Society was "to increase our knowledge as much as possible." Their ideal was "Excelsior—higher still." The activities of the group were hiking, swimming, golf, and tennis. They have enjoyed many parties, banquets, and wiener roasts. In their weekly programs they studied nature. Officers for this society were: Crystal Parrish, Pres.; Thressa London, V.-pres.; Geneva Treece, Secy. and Treas.; Ida Davis and Blanche Linder, Prog. and Service Chair.; Marie Wittmer, Parliam.

To a Student

Year by year in school you have been building the foundation for your temple of life. The ideas and ideals which possess your thought and imagination today will determine the character of the influence which you will wield when you take your place in society, to contribute your share of service to humanity. Thanks to the excellent school system which provides you this knowledge of values, you are being moulded into citizens who will further our social ideals of cooperation, sympathy and understanding.

It is always a pleasure to discuss service, whether by private endeavor, or commercial enterprise. The Empire District Electric Company is engaged in public service, and service is the ideal ever before its leaders. We like to feel that we are doing more than merely satisfying physical wants but rather by bringing light and cheer and comfort into your home, we are making life just a little more worth living.

Cornelia G.: "The other day the bank sent me a note saying I had overdrawn my account, and they wanted me to send $5.00 immediately to balance it, but altho' I sent it they are still bothering me."
Bob Smart: "You say you sent them the 'five?' "
Cornelia: "Yes, that very day."
Bob: "That's strange. How'd you send it?"
Cornelia: "Why, I sent them a check, of course!"

Rose Warten (to a farmer in whose home she was visiting): "That cow is certainly regarding me in a very savage way."

The farmer: "Perhaps, it must be on account of that red dress you are wearing."

Rose W.: "Dear me, of course I know it's terribly out of style, but I had no idea a cow would notice it."

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The Joplimo Staff of 1932, takes this opportunity to thank the many friends and the faculty who have been untiring in their efforts to make possible the publication of this 1932 Joplimo. We are especially grateful to the merchants, the Chamber of Commerce, the Joplin Printing Company, and the civic clubs of Joplin, who have been most helpful, not only in furnishing photographs, but also in giving us financial support, without which we could not possibly have made this book a success as a civic enterprise. We wish to express our appreciation of the moral and financial support given by the student body and of the whole-hearted cooperation and suggestions of our advisers, Miss Barlow, Miss Buck, and Mr. Livingston. We sincerely hope that those long cherished memories will be made real again each time you turn the pages of this book.
